Action To Put Fines On Miners

Strategy Being Mapped By The Counsel For John L. Lewis

By Sterling F. Green

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30 (AP)—The government acted today to chalk up retroactive fines against the individual miners for each day of the soft coal strike while prospects for an out-of-court settlement waned.

The fines, $1 to $2 for each day of idleness, will not be collected, however, until the miners go back to work and they can be deducted from paychecks. And the proceeds will go to the union's own medical fund, administered solely by it.

Undeterred by this move, counsel for John L. Lewis and the United Mine Workers mapped fresh strategy for their legal battle against the government which resumes Monday. They plan an appeal to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals if the Federal District Court ruling goes against them, it was learned, and they hope that any contempt of court sentence may be stayed until it is decided.

The private operators of the Southern Coal Producers Association, called to meet here Monday, may remove Edward R. Burke as president, said one industry official, for his announcement Thursday that "we are willing to talk" with Lewis on "wages, hours and everything else." Ten directors have repudiated Burke's statement.

More Lay-Offs Result

As the nationwide walkout of the 400,000 bituminous miners passed its tenth day, the number of steel, factory and other workers laid off in the creeping industrial paralysis climbed close to 100,000. Another 167,000 were on furlough from fuel-starved factories for the Thanksgiving week-end.

Against this wintery prospect were a few feeble rays of cheer. The government announced its drastic, 21-state dimout would not prevent the illumination indoor Christmas trees. The official announcement said that Civilian Production Administrator John D. Small expressed "hope that the work stoppage in the coal mines would be over soon."

The fines against the individual miners were authorized in union agreements with private operators and carried forward in the government contract which Lewis claims is terminated and the government contends is still in force. They were designed to give the union a weapon for preventing "wildcat" strikes which it did not authorize. The procedure under government operation calls for the mine operators to apply to the government for authority to impose the fines.

Would Total Millions

A spokesman for Capt. N. H. Collisson, coal mines administrator, announced that "numerous" applications have been granted, but declined to give the exact number. If all 3,300 strikebound coal companies should fine their men for the ten-day idleness to date, the sum already would total between $4,000,000 and $8,000,000.

The spokesman for Collisson noted, however, that probably not all companies will seek approval to fine, many will not impose fines even when permission is granted, and others would not collect the money even if they levied the fine. Usually, he said, companies waive the fines once a settlement is reached. Moreover, the fines are not provided for by contract in all districts.

The Pittsburgh - Consolidation Coal Co., announced it has begun to levy daily $1 fines against the 4,500 strikers at its 14 western Pennsylvania pits. The money will be taken out of paychecks when the strike ends.

Developments In Virginia

These developments occurred on the outskirts of the court controversy:

1. The Virginia State Corporation Commission, it was reported, may go ahead with its scheduled hearing Monday against Lewis regardless of whether he or his counsel shows up. The hearing is to determine whether Lewis should be barred from selling UMW "memberships" in Virginia because the union has not registered with the commission. UMW's benefits to members, the complaint contends, amounts to securities which should be registered.

2. The Interior Department reported that conferences already have started between federal agencies and companies which propose to pump natural gas to the east through the big and little inch pipelines during the coal emergency.

3. New Proposals for legislation to promote labor peace are expected from a three-day conference of state labor commissioners and union leaders which will start Monday. At the capitol, a check showed strong support for President Truman in his finish fight with Lewis from both Democrats and Republicans.

Car in Which Max Riecke Met Death

The 1937 Ford coach of Max Riecke, Ionia, Mo., auctioneer, who was fatally injured when it and a 1937 Chevrolet one and a half ton truck driven by John Hoeppner, Windsor R. F. D., collided on Highway 65 about 12 miles south of Sedalia, Friday night. The entire left front and side of the Ford car was crushed in on Mr. Riecke, who was driving. He was accompanied by Mrs. Riecke, who is in the Bothwell hospital, and Mr. and Mrs. Walker Durrill, their son Dickie Durrill, and Melvin Riecke, young son of Mr. and Mrs. Riecke. Mr. Riecke died a few minutes after the accident. (Staff Photo).

Murder Charge In Kirksville Slaying

KIRKSVILLE, Mo., Nov. 30—(AP)—Perry Painter, assistant prosecuting attorney, said a first degree murder charge was filed today against Glen Creason, 22, ex-service man of Kirksville, in the slaying of LeRoy H. Whitlock, 22, also of Kirksville, in a pasture four miles north of town Nov. 16.

At a coroner's inquest today deputy sheriff Harvey Sevits testified that Creason admitted the slaying after his arrest yesterday.

Painter said a preliminary hearing probably will be held early next week.

Back Truman In Finish Fight

Congressmen Say He Should Go To Final Showdown

By Jack Bell

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30—(AP)—President Truman has strong backing from congressmen of both parties for a non-compromise, finish fight with John L. Lewis, a check disclosed today.

Almost without exception, the Democrats and Republicans said they think Mr. Truman should go to a final showdown with the United Mine Workers chieftain, without making any concessions that could be hearalded as a victory for Lewis.

Responsible Republicans in the house, who did not want to be quoted by name because they insisted that until Jan. 3 it is Mr. Truman's battle, told a reporter that the new GOP-controlled congress is certain to consider legislation directed at throttling Lewis' power if the coal strike is not ended before it meets.

Hope For Compromise

In the senate, the only available member who saw any hope of compromise was Senator Elbert Thomas (D-Utah), listed as a strong supporter of organized labor in the past.

Thomas said he thinks some compromise could be found by which a welfare fund could be established permanently for the miners, if that is Lewis' main objective in attempting to terminate the UMW contract with the government. This contract provides for such a fund, but mine owners have not agreed to it.

Thomas added, however, that it appears President Truman is almost irrevocably committed to a finish fight with Lewis through the court action the government has taken.

"The court will commit the President by its decision," he said.

Advancing a variety of proposals for legislative action, Democratic and Republican senators generally agreed that Mr. Truman will get staunch backing if he fights it out to the finish with Lewis.

Girls Collect 219 Pounds of Grease

Two hundred nineteen pounds of grease was collected Saturday by the Girl Scouts.

Working with the Girl Scouts at various schools were Mrs. Lawrence Wolf, Sacred Heart; Mrs. L. H. Hodges, Mark Twain; Mrs. Marry Lambirth, Jefferson; Mrs. A. A. Ferguson, Horace Mann and Mrs. William Morgan, Whittier.

Those who were missed Saturday and who have grease are asked to call 521 Monday morning and then leave it on their doorstep Tuesday when it will be collected.

Decided Elk Hunter Killed Himself

Young, Ariz., Nov. 30—(AP)—A coroner's jury decided today that Dixie Lee Henderson, 56, Tucson elk hunter, killed himself after being lost three days in isolated McGollom rim country.

His body was found Thursday six miles from his "Q" ranch camp, a bullet wound in the temple. His pocket watch, which had been pinned to a tree, kept time until the following morning.

Mother Held In Death of Baby Daughter

Testified At Inquest She Hit Child's Head On Floor for Whining

Grieved beyond tears, Mrs. Barbara Marion Middleton, 22, at an inquest admitted to a Coroner's Jury that she was guilty of inflicting fatal injuries to her 13 and a half months old daughter, B. Russette Middleton on Thanksgiving Day. Mrs. Middleton, the last witness to be called by Dr. Kenneth L. Holdren, coroner, related to the jury what had occured at their home on R. F. D. No. 5.

Coroner Jury Verdict

The jury composed of Paul J. Hedderich, foreman, Rodney Tevis, Lawson Clingan, Don Clifford, Ed. McMullin and R. A. Malone, after hearing the evidence returned the following verdict: We, the jury, find Mrs. Barbara Marian Middleton, by her own admission guilty".

Dr. Holdren after the verdict was read said, "I order Mrs. Barbara Marion Middleton, confined to the county jail without bond for further investigation". He then turned to Sheriff Ed Goetz and told him to take her into custody.

Mrs. Middleton was then taken to the county jail.

Baby Died Friday Morning

Following the death of the baby, who was a year old on October 14, at the Bothwell hospital about 2:30 o'clock Friday morning, Dr. Holdren held an autopsy. Present at the autopsy were Dr. E. L. Rhodes, who attended the child at the hospital after it had been taken there by the mother, and Dr. Joseph W. Maunders.

The doctors according to their testimony found a severe fracture on the back part of the skull, and agreed that it was improbable it could have occured in a fall from a nursery chair hardly twelve inches tall. Following the autopsy Dr. Holdren reported his find to Prosecuting Attorney L. J. Harned and suggested further investigation be made.

Ernest Beyer, deputy sheriff, was assigned to make the investigation. He worked on the case Friday and Saturday and reported to Dr. Holdren there was suspicion something may be wrong. Dr. Holdren then ordered the inquest for 7 o'clock Saturday night at the Ewing Funeral Home.

Neighbors Testify

Testifying at the hearing were neighbors, Mrs. J. S. Driskell, and Miss Lois Estes, who told of caring for the baby for Mrs. Middleton when she left home to go to town to shop; Mrs. Mary Catherine Alexander, next door neighbor, who told of hearing Mrs. Middleton spank the child, but had never seen her do it; Mrs. Ethel Berry, her sister-in-law, who told of Mrs. Middleton taking the child to her home Thanksgiving Day.

Mrs. Berry said, her sister-in-law, went to her home carrying the baby in a blanket and telling her it had fallen from it's nursery chair and had the breath knocked out of her. Together they took the baby to the Bothwell hospital.

Dr. Maunders and Dr. Rhodes then testified of results of the autopsy. Deputy Beyer then testified as to the investigation he conducted and of conversations with neighbors of the Middleton's.

Husband Gives Testimony

The baby's father, Russell Middleton, 25, was then called to the stand. He told of starting to go for a load of gravel and when at Sixteenth street and Highway 65, felt there was something wrong and turned around and went home. He said that when he got home he started to do some work and was going to the chicken house when his brother-in-law L. G. Berry arrived and told him there had been an accident and he immediately started for the hospital.

The father, who works at the Taystee Baking Co., said his wife greeted him at the hospital with "Where were you?"

Sedalian Injured In Stolen Car

A man identified by state patrolmen as G. L. Kabler, 29, 412 East Saline street, suffered fractures of the right arm and collarbone in the overturning of a stolen motor car early last night on U. S. highway No. 50 five miles east of Pittsville, Mo. Harvey Van Meter, Harrisonville, Mo., reported the vehicle stolen three hours earlier.

Kabler told troopers he was hitchhiking and was picked up by two men who fled after the accident. He was taken to a hospital in Warrensburg, Mo.

Mother Ordered Held Without Bond

Top: Mrs. Barbara Marian Middleton, 22 has just been ordered held without bond, by Dr. Kenneth L. Holdren, coroner, following a verdict of a Coroner's Jury, which declared, "We, the jury, find Mrs. Barbara Marian Middleton, by her own admission guilty." The jury at an inquest heard evidence in the death of her thirteen and a half months old daughter B. Russette Middleton, who died last Friday morning from injuries received Thanksgiving day. The mother had testified she had picked up the baby and shook her and hitting the baby's head on the floor because of her "continuously whining." Mrs. Middleton is surrounded by relatives, her husband Russell Middleton stands behind her head bent; her mother-in-law, Mrs. D. L. Middleton, at the left, Mrs. D. L. Middleton, at the right, and a brother of Mr. Middleton stands next to him.

Center: Mrs. Middleton just after she had given her testimony and ready to leave the stand. She was grief stricken and beyond tears while giving her testimony.

Forget-Me-Not Sales Success

The annual For-Get-Me-Not drive sold for the Disabled American Veterans of the World War resulted in a total of approximately $241 worth sold during the Saturday drive.

Seven girls aided in the days selling and those three who came out as the top "saleswomen" were, Mary Morley, 1st; Betty Joe Carnnine 2nd; and Earline Riley 3rd.

Mrs. Fred Morley assisted by Mrs. George Weekely was in charge of the drive.

Authorize Gas Line To Michigan-Wisconsin

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30—(AP)—The federal power commission today authorized a new $84,000,000 natural gas pipe line between Texas and Michigan and Wisconsin.

The decision enables the Michigan-Wisconsin pipe line company to build 1,076 miles of line with 892 miles of branch line from the Hugoton gas fields in Texas.

The commission also authorized Panhandle eastern pipe line company to construct $23,644,000 of additional facilities to its Texas-Michigan natural gas pipe line system.

The Michigan-Wisconsin construction envisages an initial outlay of $56,808,076, with additional construction during the next four years raising the total to $84,059,547.

Postpone Opening Of College Winter Term

MARYVILLE, Mo., Nov. 30—(AP)—Opening of the winter term at Northwest Missouri Teachers College has been postponed from December 3 to December 9 because of the coal shortage, president J. W. Jones announced today.

Efforts to convert the school heating system from coal to fuel oil are being made, Jones said, and if the installations are not complete by December 9 another postponement may be necessary.

Appeal to the solid fuels administration for coal have brought no reply, the college president added.

Max Riecke Is Killed In Auto Accident

His Car And Truck Driven By John Hoeppner Collide

Max Riecke, 47, Ionia, auctioneer, was fatally injured about 6:20 Friday night, when his car and a truck crashed on highway 65, about 12 miles south of Sedalia. His wife, Mrs. Hazel Riecke, her sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Durrill, and their son Dickie, Roseville, California, and Melvin Riecke, 13, their son, were in the car.

Mr. Riecke, was driving his 1937 V-8 Ford coach to Sedalia bringing Mr. and Mrs. Durrill and son to the Missouri Pacific station where they were to catch a train to take them back to their home. The Durrill's had been visiting relatives including the Riecke family for the past several weeks.

Ford Car Demolished

His car was headed north and the ton and a half 1937 Chevrolet truck driven by John Hoeppner, R. F. D. No. 2, Windsor, was going south when the accident occurred. The front left part of the large body of the truck struck the coach on the left front part of the body crushing it in on Mr. Riecke. The impact of the two vehicles was terrific, causing the Ford car to swerve around and at the same time locking into the truck.

The Ford was practically demolished, and the truck badly damaged.

Mr. Riecke received head injuries and possible internal injuries. He passed away a few minutes after the accident before medical attention could be summoned.

Mrs. Riecke, received a possible skull fracture, lacerations about the mouth and bruises.

Mrs. Durrill received a fracture of her right thumb and bruises. Mr. Durrill received bruises and an injury to the left hip not believed to be serious.

Their son Dickie had a laceration of the hand and bruises.

Son Arrives On Scene

Mr. and Mrs. Riecke's son Max W. Riecke, and his wife, who reside at Windsor, were driving in their car and about two minutes behind their parents, arriving at the accident before his father passed away. Mr. Riecke never regained consciousness after the collision.

The injured were rushed to the Bothwell hospital in the McLaughlin ambulance, where Dr. D. R. Edwards and Dr. A. L. Walter, attended them.

Dr. Kenneth L. Holdren, coroner, was notified, and went to the scene. After viewing the body and conducting an investigation, stated an inquest was not necessary.

Dr. Holdren, Saturday, in company with George Meyer, a mechanic made an inspection of the truck. The mechanic found the tie-rod had apparently slipped out of place causing the front wheels of the truck swing loose. According to Dr. Holdren the rod had the appearance of coming loose through no fault of the driver, as it was not damaged in anyway from the collision.

"In view of my investigation and the inspection of the truck by Mr. Meyers, I do not believe it necessary for an inquest. I shall report it as an unavoidable accident," Dr. Holdren stated.

State Troopers Wayne Allman and Pete Stohr were called to the scene and conducted and investigation.

Mr. Riecke was born near Manila, Mo., in October 1899, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Willie Riecke of near Manila. When a small boy Mr. Riecke's father met with a tragic accident, being killed when he was struck by lightning while working on his farm.

Surviving him besides his widow, are two sons, Max Riecke, 23, of Windsor, and Melvin, 13. Also three brothers survive, Ralph and Willie Riecke of Manila and Clarence Riecke of Ionia.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 o'clock Monday afternoon at the Ionia Methodist church with the Rev. Iva A. Pitchford.

Pallbearers will be Elmo Kreisler, Clinton, Ed Smith, Glenn Brown, Otto Hesse and Dave Friedley, all of Ionia and Roscoe Sunwall of Sedalia.

The body is at the McLaughlin funeral chapel and will remain there until taken to Ionia for the services.

Burial will be in the Ionia cemetery.

Damage By Fire At Gillian Home

The fire companies were called to the residence of George Gilliam, 1010 East Fourth street, where the residence had caught fire from burning grass and leaves. Damage of about $100 resulted.

The fire in the yard ignited the weather boarding on the side of the house and burned it's way between the wall.

Negro In Custody, Held As "Firebug" After Series of Fires

Elopus Walker in Confession After Arrest Saturday At Chillicothe

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Nov. 30 (AP)—A 46-year-old Negro laborer who confessed, Col. Hugh H. Waggoner of the Missouri highway patrol said today, to setting a $250,000 series of fires in north central Missouri recently has been charged with arson, burglary and larceny.

Colonel Waggoner said the charges were filed by Grundy county Prosecuting Attorney Leroy Miller late today, 12 hours after the man, Elopus Walker of Kansas City, was picked up in Chillicothe, 32 miles from Laredo, scene of the latest fires early Friday morning.

Waggoner said Walker, who has a long prison record in Missouri and Ohio, was charged with setting two fires in the Grundy county town of Laredo where five buildings were destroyed in the predawn darkness for an estimated loss of $75,000. While the fires blazed the George Brick home was burglarized and $10 stolen from a billfold.

Walker, born in Corder, Mo., where the initial incendiary blaze occurred Sept. 8, orally admitted setting the fires because "I like to see 'em burn," Waggoner said.

"Definitely Tied With Fires"

Articles in Walker's possession, the patrol chief declared, "definitely tie him up with the fires' that have alerted police and residents across a wide expanse of north Missouri. Waggoner said the admissions by Walker indicated the fires were not stage-setting for burglaries that followed many of the fires.

The man's arrest was reported to have eased the strain on citizenry, volunteer fire departments and authorities and Colonel Waggoner predicted the villagers in the area tonight would get their first fear-free sleep in weeks.

But the patrol chief went ahead with plans for a conference Wednesday of fire department chiefs and municipal authorities from the area. He said the meeting should be valuable in promoting close cooperation among the towns in combating future blazes of any sort.

Dispels Apprehension

"He admitted all of the fires," Colonel Waggoner said. "He admitted the robberies, too. His confession seems to clear up the whole north Missouri reign of incendiarism."

At Chillicothe, Lieut. J. S. Poage, in charge of the troop headquarters at St. Joseph, said he asked Walker why he set the fires.

"Damn meanness is the only thing I know," he quoted Walker as replying.

In Walker's pockets were found knives, a flashlight, gloves, two billfolds and coins. One billfold bore the name "Gus."

Poage quoted the man as saying that after setting the Laredo fire, he walked to a hill outside of the town and watched the fire, later later re-entering the town and burglarizing two houses. In one of them a billfold contining $20 was taken.

No Resistance

The three Chillicothe policemen who arrested Walker said he did not resist. The officers were Roy Uhrmacher, Harry Lowe, and Alf Meek.

Walker's arrest followed a trip from Herschel Chambers, employed at a dairy north of Chillicothe. He reported he saw the man walking south on U. S. highway 65. He called police, who made a check, but were unable to locate him. About an hour later he was arrested as he walked into Chillicothe.

Patrol officers said a Negro stranger had talked to persons at Higbee, Mayview and Odessa within a short time of fires in those localities, and all officers had been alerted to watch for a Negro suspect.

Three business houses, the Christian church and a vacant house were destroyed in the fire at Larido in Grundy county. The total loss was estimated at $75,000.

At the height of the fire, the home of George Brick was burglarized.

The break in the case climaxed a reign of terror in the north central part of the state. State highway troopers had been on the alert for the suspect for many weeks as one series of fires followed another. All yielded evidences of incendiarism, but police were left few clues to work on.

In all of them the pattern was generally the same. A fire would break out in a business building. As townspeople gathered to fight the flames, another would break out some distance away. Most of them were accompanied by burglaries in which cigarettes, small items and food comprised the loot. All occurred during the early morning hours.

Towns visited by the arsonist were those without fire equipment

Civic Clubs Form Council

A meeting of the five civic clubs, Rotary, Lions, Optimist, Kiwanis and Business and Professional Women, was held in the office of J. U. Morris, county extension agent, on Friday, November 29, to form a council with two members from each club appointed by the various boards.

This group is to be known as the Sedalia Civic Club Council.

J. U. Morris, president of the Rotary club, was named presiding chairman, and Mrs. Ollie McMullin, president of the Business and Professional Women, recording secretary.

The purpose of the council is a group to discuss problems from their respective clubs and to assist each other in various activities when necessary.

Representing the various clubs were: Lions, Carl Urban and William F. Brown; Kiwanis, Rev. A. J. Brunswick and Pinkney Miller; Optimist, Dr. Ben Klein and Lee Brandt; Rotary, J. U. Morris and Lyle Brown; Business and Professional Women's club, Miss Mary Shanks and Mrs. Ollie McMullin.

The meeting date of the club was decided upon and will be the third Monday evening in each month in Mr. Morris' office.

Need But $1,707 For Chest Goal

The Community Chest drive is well under way in Sedalia and only $1,707.78 is needed to reach this year's goal, which is set at $14,400, according to Rev. H. U. Campbell, publicity chairman of the drive. So far $12,692.22 has been contributed to the fund.

Although no divisional reports are in as yet, the drive is said to be progressing satisfactorily. Roy Schick, general chairman of the Community Chest drive, urges all divisional chairmen to turn in their reports, in completion, as soon as possible.

Anyone wishing to contribute money to the drive may bring or mail it to the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce.

Legion Auxiliary To Plan Christmas Party

The American Legion Auxiliary unit to Pettis County Post No. 16 will hold its regular meeting at Parish Hall, Monday, December 2nd, at eight o'clock.

Mrs. Alice White, the unit president, is planning an interesting program with plans being made for a special Christmas party, and other activities of special interest to the organization. All eligible members are invited to come, including the Gold Star Mothers, and wives and sisters of Gold Stars. A full attendance is expected.

May Have Indoor Christmas Trees

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30—(AP)—It's all right to light up the kids' indoor Christmas trees, Santa Claus, but leave the others dark.

John D. Small, civilian production administrator, gave the word tonight. He ruled the 21-state dimout banning ornamental lighting because of the coal strike was not meant to cover indoor Christmas trees in homes.

But it does apply to indoor trees in stores and other business buildings, and all outdoor Christmas trees.

The Weather

Missouri—fair Sunday and Monday; colder Sunday and Sunday night; continued rather cold Monday; high Sunday 40 to 45.

Conjecture to What's Ahead Coming Year

Some Expect to Have Recession and Then a Boom

By Clarke Beach

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—(AP)—The burning question is "Recession or Boom in 1947?"

Talks with highly placed government fiscal and economic experts bring out these facts:

1. Many, probably most, expect a recession in 1947, followed by a boom. Some believe the boom wil' end in a crash.

2. A few see "no compelling reason" for an economic slump in the foreseeable future. But these do not predict it will not occur.

Men in the latter group feel that it's quite possible the country is "talking itself into a depression."

One of them explains it thus:

"They say 'we had a depression after the last war, therefore we'll have one after this war. This war lasted twice as long, so the depression will come twice as late and be twice as bad."

But, this man added, business conditions then and now differ in many respects. The national economy now includes many governmental agencies and institutions which it did not have before the 1929 crash. This man and others who think like him look to these agensies to buttress the economy against collapse.

Newest and most strategically placed of such units is the President's Council of Economic Advisers, whose job is to gather economic facts and recommend measures to promote the nation's economic well-being.

May Use Data for Report

What the Council says in its first report—a confidential memorandum to the President, due December 16—may supply the key to the administration's economic policies for the coming year. The President, under the "Full Employment" Act of 1946, will make an economic report to congress at the beginning of the next session, presumably based on the council's findings.

Whatever action the council may recommend, many experts in other agencies of the government doubt that any steps could be taken in time to avert a recession in 1947 if one is on the way.

Here are five ways these pessimistically inclined experts say they think a recession might get started next year:

1. If prices get too far ahead of wages, buying power might slacken, production slow down, workers be thrown out of jobs.

2. When warehouses and shelves are well stocked, the resulting drop in dealer demand for goods might throw production off balance. (It is estimated that from two to three million persons are employed producing goods for inventory buyers.)

3. Some producers, unable to procure certain parts and materials to complete their product, are piling up unfinished and unsaleable merchandise. The lack of a turnover is threatening some businesses, particularly small manufacturers.

4. Wages and other costs are rising faster than some business men say they can increase their prices. This might squeeze some out of business.

5. Although employment is practically at a maximum, many factories are running at slow speed because of shortages of materials. Large numbers of employes are hired on a stand-by basis against the time the employer can obtain materials or facilities. This time may not come soon enough for some employers.

Prices and Production

Prices and production, two of the basic factors, are now almost entirely out of the control of the government.

The inventory buying situation, which commerce department economists find particularly disturbing, is also chiefly the responsibility of private business. The main hope of the experts is that when inventory buying ceases, consumer demand and the construction program will take up the slack.

The optomists—of whom President Truman and Secretary of the Treasury Snyder have been among the most outspoken—list many favorable factors now prevailing, such as the following:

1. The highest level of peacetime employment in history—57,400,000.

2. Industrial production at a peacetime high. The Federal Reserve Board's adjusted index of production for September stands at 177 per cent of the 1935-39 average.

3. Steel ingot production in November above 91 per cent of capacity—a new post-war high.

4. Electrical power output in the first week of November at the highest level on record.

5. Exports and imports at all-time highs.

Meanwhile new safety devices (new since 1929) are being alerted to take action in case a crash threatens. They include:

International bank and fund, designed to stabilize currencies and facilitate sound loans to nations needing rehabilitation.

Securities exchange commission, to prevent blind, irresponsible speculation in the stock market.

Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, to prevent banks from making unwise loans and to avoid bank panics by insuring deposits.

Banking Act of 1938, to prevent deposit banking institutions from underwriting securities.

Reconstruction finance corporation, primarily to aid hard-pressed insurance companies, railroads and banks by extending loans which they could not get from private lenders.

Farm Credit administration, to bail out farmers who are in temporary financial difficulties.

Social security unemployment insurance, to ease the effects of unemployment.

Some economists point out, however, that many of these agencies are designed to prevent a speculative boom, such as we had in the '20s. It is generally agreed that the present boom is not speculative.

These organizations' big job may come during a long upward climb to some high prosperity peak in the 1950s—which also is freely predicted on all sides, even among those who expect a crash next year.

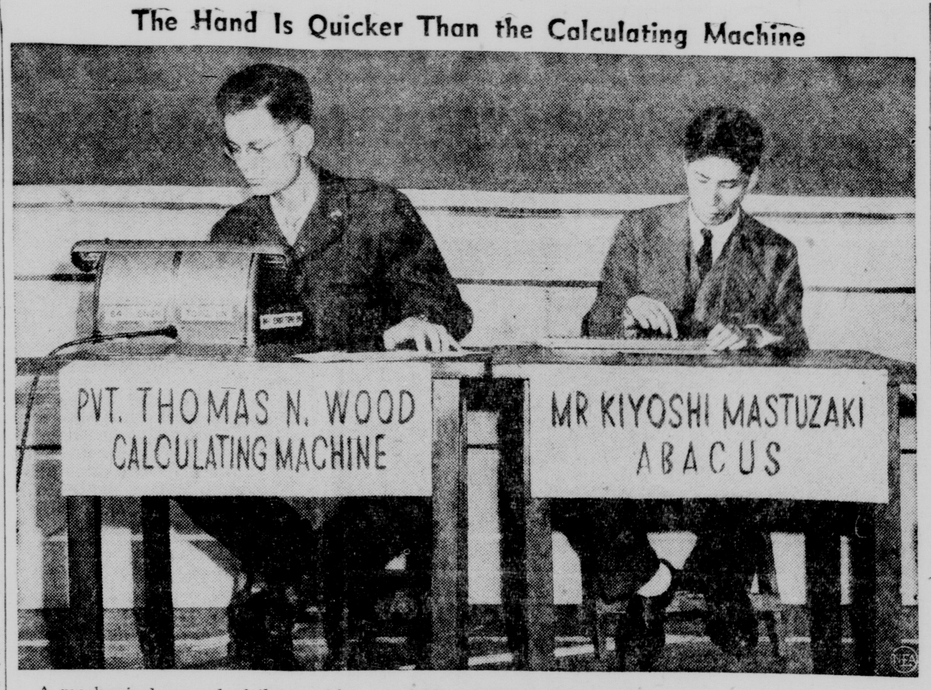

Denmark had the first Christmas Seal Sale in 1904. The money raised was used to help needy tuberculosis children. Seals have been sold in this country since 1907 to fight tuberculosis.

Einar Holboell, Danish postal clerk, first thought of a "health" Christmas Seal. His idea was tried in this country in 1907. Christmas seals have been sold here ever since to support tuberculosis control program.

Tuberculosis kills more young people between 15 and 35 years of age than any other disease. Christmas Seals support a nationwide movement to bring tuberculosis under control.

The discovery of insulin revolutionized the treatment of diabetes.

The Hand Is Quicker Than the Calculating Machine

A mechanical marvel of the machine age took a beating recently when, in a contest at the Ernie Pyle Theater, Tokyo, the abacus, ancient manual counting device, defeated the most up-to-date electric calculating machine. Above, Kiyoshi ("The Hands") Mastuzaki manipulates the abacus while Pvt. Thomas N. Wood, of Dearing, Mo., operates the machine. The abacus won three out of four arithmetical operations, making the best time in addition, subtraction and division. The machine's only victory was in multiplication test.

Missouri Girl Is A National 4-H Winner

CHICAGO, Nov. 30—(AP)—A Kansas youth and a Missouri farm girl Friday were named winners of the National 4-H Leadership contest, sponsored by the 25th National 4-H Club Congress.

Lewis Topliff, 20, of Formosa, Kansas., and Estelle Ruth Stewart, 20, of Mill Grove, Mo., won trophies and $200 college scholarships.

Topliff's award was based on 11 years of 4-H work in which he showed "marked versatility," the 4-H Club Congress said. He ranked high in his dairy project, was judged "best groomed boy" in Kansas 4-H Clubs, and won top rank in leadership. Topliff led his group in scrap drives and Red Cross fund raising, and in high school played football, basketball and tennis, played in the band, sang in the glee club, and made the honor roll four times.

Miss Stewart's 11-year record with the 4-H group won her the title of "outstanding club girl of four states" at the St. Joseph, Mo., interstate 4-H show. She was club leader for six years, serving also as president for two years and secretary for three. She was a former county 4-H president as well, and a 4-H camp counselor. She is now a freshman at the University of Missouri.

The 40th annual Christmas Seal Sale in the United States will be conducted from November 25 to December 25 by 2,900 tuberculosis associations in all the states, Distrctof Columbia and the territories to raise funds to fight tuberculosis

Because tuberculosis has no outward symptoms in its early stage yet may be contagious in that stage, it constitutes a major public health problem in this country

They Learn By Living

The Scenery's Familiar. But the Approach is New

Informal session on world affairs is conducted by Publisher William Ziff, one of Romford School founders, in an open-air classroom with a rural Connecticut background that makes it look as comfortable as a lazy summer vacation bull-session. Surrounding Ziff are (left to right) John MacDonald, Kent Rasche, William Wood (who fought on Okinawa with the marines), Peter Morrell, Myron Sneider, and Roger Wolf. Danny, the dog, is the school's mascot.

By NEA Service

WASHINGTON, Conn. (NEA)—In this quiet country town nearly a dozen leaders of industrial, scientific and political life are trying to help 73 boys reach a new understanding of the complex social and technological problems of today. If they succeed they may bring about a new approach to education.

At Romford School, boys are being trained for life by living, studying, working and talking with such men as Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., former U. S. Secretary of State; Dr. Quo Tai-Chi, Chinese member of the UN Security Council; Industrialist Joseph W. Frazer, Publisher William B. Ziff, Physicist Dr. Carl Compton, Senator Elbert D. Thomas of Utah, and others.

These leaders come to the school for two-week periods during the year and live in intimate association with the boys.

The Romford plan was conceived by Ziff because he believes that the "present orthodox type of schooling, with its academic limitations, takes a boy at the most impressionable years of his life and largely ignores the conditions which that boy will have to face when he leaves school."

Scientific Approach

"We must teach these boys to think for themselves and to speak for themselves," Ziff says, "to depend less on memory tests and more on the capacity to understand and evaluate life.

"By meeting and mingling with important men from all fields of endeavor, boys will learn to address themselves to the problems of the times. They will acquire a balanced knowledge of all kinds of thinking—conservative, liberal and radical—and by synthesis go on to achieve a point of view entirely their own."

In the study of Headmaster Joseph J. Stetson, Romford School student John MacDonald of Hilton Village, Va., brings up a study problem while Stetson's Great Dane kibitzes. Headmaster holds open house every evening to help students with homework.

Frazer, who is chairman of the board of trustees of the school, believes that criticism of educational methods in general are justified because "schools allow their students to live so much in the past that they lose touch with the present; so much in theory that they lose sight of practice."

Romford, he says, is seeking a "working adjustment between the academic and the practical."

The Romford plan doesn't break completely with academic tradition. Its graduates will get basic preparation for entrance into colleges and universities, but in a scientific world it is placing heavier emphasis on the scientific approach to all study, including history, economics and sociology.

The founders believe that to turn a boy out as a citizen rather than simply an "educated" individual he must have some concept of the arts and of culture generally But they feel that it is just as important for him to be able to "harangue a crowd or conduct himself well at a board meeting."

In addition to everything else, the boys will be taught to be socially at ease, to dance, to drive an automobile and to understand the mechanics of an airplane.

"Instead of detesting education, the boys will be geared to a world of tremendous adventure in business, laboratory and science so as to make learning interesting."

20 Vets Among Students

Its 73 students, selected from slightly over 1,000 applications, range in age from 13 to 21, from boys just beginning their secondary education to combat veterans like William Wood, who served 32 months in the Marine Corps at Okinawa and in China. In all, 20 are veterans, one of them still awaiting discharge.

The boys come from 10 states and the District of Columbia in the United States, and from five foreign countries, one from as far away as Riga, Latvia. The school's faculty is just as cosmopolitan.

It is still too early to judge the final results of the Romford plan, but educators are watching the method closely. Dr. Compton, president of Massachusetts Institute of Technicology, calls it "the greatest forward step in secondary education in 50 years."

Cut-Rate Rail Fares Santa's G. I. Present

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30—(AP)—The interstate commerce commission came through with a Christmas present for servicemen Friday—an order that their cut-rate fares be continued until at least the end of January.

These rates are 1¼ cents per mile as compared with the civilian coach fare of 2.2 cents.

All but four railroads east of the Mississippi river had announced plans to abandon the special "furlough rates" on December 1. The ICC refused to let them and set a hearing for December 11 to decide what the policy should be after January 30.

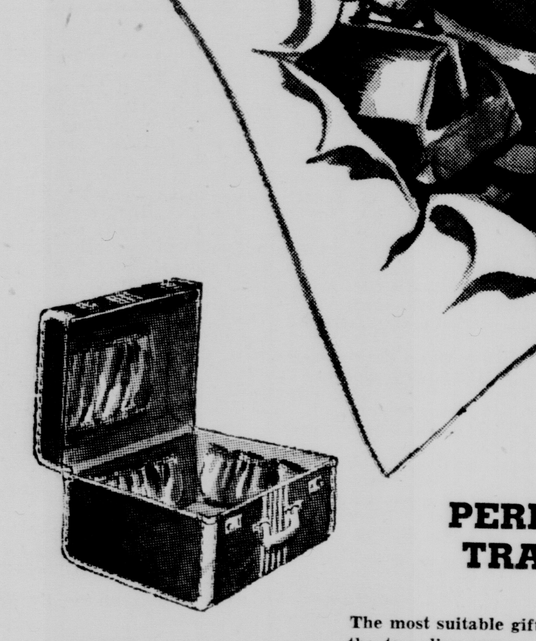

The Great Lakes are in the U. S. zone of lowest annual evaporation.

stand and her testimony is as follows:

Transcript of the testimony of Mrs. Barbara Marian Middleton, given at the coroner's inquest held at the Ewing funeral home, Sedalia, Missouri, at 7 p. m., Saturday November 30, 1946, inquiring into the cause of death of B. Rusette Middleton, age thirteen and a half months.

Mrs. Barbara Marian Middleton, called as a witness by the Coroner, Dr. K. J. Holdren, coroner of Pettis county, being duly sworn, upon her oath, testified as follows, to-wit:

Examination By Dr. Holdren

Q. State your name, please?

A. Barbara Marian Middleton.

Q. Raise your right hand and be sworn (witness does as requested).

Q. Mrs. Middleton, how old was your daughter?

A. Thirteen and a half months.

Q. Will you tell the jury what took place about a quarter of one, or one o'clock, on Thursday afternoon?

A. My husband left, he had been gone maybe ten or fifteen minutes. . . the baby, I don't know whether she wanted to go, she kept continuously whining there. I don't know, I lost my head, picked her up and shook her.

Q. What did you do when you shook this child?

A. I remember of hitting her head on the floor two or three times and I don't remember anything else, except when I came out I was sitting on the couch holding her.

Q. Did you shake this child with a considerable amount of force?

A. I would say I did.

Q. Did you not tell me that the child was sitting on her little nursery chair close to the wall and that you were in the other room and you heard her fall?

A. I told you that.

Q. Was that the truth?

A. No.

Q. And you claim that after you shook her two or three times that you do not recollect what happened until you came to yourself sitting on the couch?

A. I was sitting on the couch holding her.

Q. Have you in times past, Mrs. Middleton, punished this child, unduly, for little things, such as whipping her unduly hard?

A. What do you mean?

Q. Well, has this child in its whining or crying irritated you?

A. Yes, it has.

Q. And was your form of punishment when she did this crying, in the form of a whipping?

A. Not whipping.

Q. Spanking?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you conscious of the fact, when you were shaking this child, you were hitting her head on the floor?

A. At first I was.

Q. Did you or did you not make a statement to Mr. Harned today?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What statement did you make to Mr. Harned?

A. Just what I told you.

Q. Gentlemen, do you have any questions? If not, you are excused. Witnessed excused.

Prosecuting Attorney L. J. Harned was not at the inquest, but later in the evening stated charges would be filed. In the meantime Mrs. Middleton will be confined to the county jail without bond.

Abandoning Mine

WILLIAMS, Okla., Nov. 30—(AP)—The Cameron coal company is abandoning its mine here "because of the bad labor situation," Mine Superintendent V. M. Stroud announced today.

The Cameron mine, one of the largest in the eastern Oklahoma field, has a payroll of 115 persons and has been in operation more than 30 years.

Company officials began taking steel tracks and other equipment out of the mine yesterday.

Death For Two Nazi Generals

ROME, Nov. 30—(AP)—Death before a firing squad was ordered today by a British military tribunal for two German generals found guilty of the reprisal massacre of 335 Italians in Rome's Ardeatine caves a little more than two months before triumphant Allied troops liberated the eternal city in 1944.

Col. Gen. Eberhard Von Mackensen, wily commander of the German 14th army which fought at Anzio beachhead, and Lt. Gen. Kurt Maeltzer, head of the Rome garison, received the verdict calmly.

Von Mackensen, in a black civilian suit, and Maeltzer, in the uniform of the German air force, merely nodded their heads as the translator informed them they would be shot to death.

The court decreed the firing squad after counsel for Von Mackensen asked that he be granted "the clean death of a soldier—death through shooting." Such a plea was spurned for the top Nazis tried before the international military tribunal at Nuernberg.

Navy Club To Meet Thursday

The local branch of the Navy Club of America will hold its first regular meeting at the Armory, Thursday night at 8 o'clock.

The Navy Club is newly organized and is composed of navy personnel, branches of the navy such as the Marines, Coast Guard and the reserves. Also the womens auxilliaries, namely the Waves, Spars and women marines are admitted.

So far Kansas City is the only "ship" in Missouri, but the Navy Club covers practically every state in the union.

Those who wish to join may do so at this meeting, as the charter has been left open to allow those who enter now to do so as charter members.

Far Apart On Disarmament

UN Anxious To Get To Practical Peace Measures

By Francis W. Carpenter

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Nov. 30—(AP)—The United States joined Soviet Russia today in calling upon the United Nations to give the atomic bomb No. 1 priority in world-wide arms limitation but the two powers remained far apart on the principle of the veto applied to a disarmament program.

The British disagreed with Russia and the United States on such a high rating for atomic weapons, insisting that they be considered along with al lother modern means of warfare. The British also flatly stated again their rejection of Russia's broad plan for disarmament as long as it is tied up with the veto.

The political committee of the U. N., Assembly, conforming to the speed-up program adopted by the United Nations to try to complete the assembly by Dec. 11, will hold its first Sunday meeting at 3 p. m. EST, tomorrow. The U. N. press department announced late today it would take up the veto instead of continuing discussion of disarmament. Australia's delegate, Paul Hasluck, expects to speak tomorrow in opposition to the veto system.

To Practical Plan

The United States delegation submitted to the political committee just as it adjourned today a proposal by which the General Assembly would recommend that the Security Council, which all delegates agree must take up the subject of disarmament, "give prompt consideration to working out the practical measures, according to their priority, which are essential" for the general regulation and reduction of armaments under intenational agreements.

Then the U. S. resolution said: "The General Assembly recognizes that essential to the general regulation and reduction of armaments is the early establishment of international control of atomic energy and other modern technological discoveries to ensure their use only for peaceful purposes."

Educated Santas On The Streets

By Allan Fisher

NEW YORK, Nov. 30—(AP)—Twenty bearded and red-coated Santa Clauses, graduates of a refresher course in "How to Win Friends and Influence the Christmas Spirit," took up posts on Manhattan street corners today, armed with psychology's best defenses against the pointed questions of small fry—and parents too.

These educated Saint Nicks passed a three-day course prepared for them by their employer, the Volunteers of America, a charitable organization which annually solicits funds for Christmas baskets and gifts to the city's needy.

Col. William R. Apetz, the Volunteers' metropolitan chief and "headmaster" of the school, presented bells in lieu of diplomas to the graduates at the Mission Tabernacle yesterday.

Although there were 25 graduates, only 20 reported for duty today—their first day on the job. Apetz said the rest got "cold feet."

The Volunteers recruit most of the Santas from among elderly, unemployed Mission callers. Their average age is well past 60 and they get $4 a day for luring silver into their coin boxes and exchanging pleasantries with the awed kids.

At school, said Apetz, they are taught "a pleasant, gentlemanly manner" and are told "never to pick up a child or kiss a child and not to sake hands with a child unless it holds out its little hand."

The Santas also are told to wash their hands before going on duty, to carry a handkerchief and to eschew drinking, smoking, garlic and onions.

Tells of Cast in Occupation

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 30—(AP)—War Secretary Robert P. Patterson said tonight it would cost $369,000,000 to meet expenses of American occupation armies for the first six months of 1947 and of that sum $105,000,000 would be needed for the rehabilitation and resettlement of 620,000 displaced persons in Austria and Germany.

Patterson told a national mobilization conference of the United Jewish appeal that since the end of the war 3,000,000 persons were restored to their homes from American zones in Europe, but the army must care for the remaining 620,000 for some time to come.

"It is one of the main activities of the occupation forces in Europe, and the expense of its is a large item in the war department budget," he said.

Patterson said his department "must ask" congress in January for a "deficiency appropriation of $369,000,000" to meet occupation expenses for the balance of the fiscal year ending June 30.

"That figure includes $91,000,000 for displaced persons in Germany and $14,000,000 for displaced persons in Austria," he said.

It was impossible to estimate what occupation costs would be for 1947-48, Patteron said, because the number of displaced persons in the American zone then could not be forecast.

Simple Process To 'Crack' Oil

Soybean Oil Is Rich With The Vitamin E

By George Tucker

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—(AP)—A simple process of separating vegetable and animal oils has opened a rich source of Vitamin E, heretofore on the scarce list, Dr. Herbert Passino, associate research director of M. W. Kellogg & Co., said in an interview today.

The process is known as the Solexol system and uses propane gas (the kind you cook with) as a solvent to break oils into fractions or component parts.

When applied to soybean oil, one pound of Vitamin E concentrate per 100 pounds of soybean oil is obtained, Dr. Passino said.

Previously all Vitamin E in the country's annual yield of 1,200,000,000 pounds of soybean oil has been lost.

Note: Vitamin E has wide therapuetic value, particularly in the field of obstetrics ,and is given to prevent miscarriages.)

"The new process not only salvages vital vitamins, but saves sterols, essential in the synthesis of hormones," Passino pointed out.

It also will contribute immense savings and higher quality concentrate in Vitamins A and D.

"We prepared a concentrate of Vitamins A and D from shark oil recently and sent it to a New York hospital for evaluation. The tests were so remarkable the hospital asked for 9 billion units immediately. We didn't have it, of course; we were in an experimental stage," Dr. Passino declared.

The scope of savings by the new non-chemical process is illustrated by this fact: In 1944 California produced 17 million gallons of sardine oil. The solexol method would have saved $3,500,000 in vitamins, leaving 12 million gallons of high grade, quick drying oils for paints.

A M. W. Kellog & Co. spokesman said a number of new plants were being constructed abroad and that five large plants are being built in the United States to use the new process. Names of the new companies ordering the new plans were not disclosed.

The Daily Washington Merry-go-Round

Editor's Note—Drew Pearson's column today takes the form of an open letter to John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers.

DEAR JOHN: A young man, just out of the army, was talking to me the other day. What he said represents the viewpoint of a lot of young men, and I thought you might be interested in hearing it.

"I don't know who caused the depression," he said. "But I know I didn't. I was only 11 years old when it started, and as a result I couldn't go to college. Instead, I went out to support the family at 16, with my ambition to be a mechanical engineer gone glimmering.

"I don't know the answer on the war either. But Hitler was in Poland before I was old enough to vote, so I don't think I started it. However, I had to take four years out of my life to help finish it. And when I came home my wife and I had grown so far apart our marriage flopped.

"All that may have been inevitable, and I'm not complaining about the past. I don't begrudge the four years I gave to my country, but I do begrudge the present and future. What I'm interested in is where we go from here. And, judging by the strikes and general attitude of kick-the-other-fellow-in-the- shins, we aren't going anywhere fast."

Your own boy, Mr. Lewis, was luckier than that. You were able to sent him to the Woodbury school in Virginia, then to Princeton, then to medical college. Which is all right. He is a fine boy and he deserves all the education he could get. But there are thousands of others who were not so lucky as your boy. And they are asking the very same question as my friend—where does the country go from here? And why do certain leaders keep on muddying up their lives?

They too have a contract—a contract with life—to do for the world as they are done by. It may not be written in black and white, as your contract with the government, but it's there just the same. And without quibbling over legal loop-holes, they want to make something of that contract—just as your boy does. Many of them have spent their best years fulfilling their end of the contract—all the way from Guadalcanal to Normandy—and now what they want is a period without depressions and without wars to collect some dividends.

And they know—far more than you and I realize—what broken contracts will mean in this highly integrated, highly sensitized world.

They know, for instance that when you broke your contract with the government, the government in turn had to break its contract with France for coal. That means many people in France will suffer this winter. I know something about that, because my brother and his four kids are over there, and their ration for all last winter was one ton of coal. This year they were hoping to fo better, but, thanks to a broken contract, they won't.

However, they can buy wood at $50 a cord. And much more important are millions of others in France who can't buy wood and who are going to say: "The United States broke its contract." More important also are the French industries which won't operate; and finally the growing number of people now leaning toward communistic Russia and away from the kind of democracy jointly founded by America and France.

All your life, John Lewis, you have been the sworn enemy of communism. I was looking up your speeches made back in the Wilson administration, and even then, twenty-five years ago, you were denouncing the Reds just as vigorously as you have been since. I agree with you on this. But right now you yourself have become the greatest single contributor to the growth of communism in the entire United States.

You are the chief American instigator of communism in Europe, and you may be the chief instigator right here in the United States. You are the best friend and collaborator the Reds have.

For a sold and shivering world plays right into the hands of every Red agitator from Seattle to Salerno.

I was in Italy after World War I before Mussolini came into power, and it was the strikes, depression, broken contracts and broken promises, plus a great sense of frustration, which finally drove the Italian people into the arms of fascism.

In your limited walks from the United Mine Workers' offices to the Carlton hotel, you may not grasp the fact that the American people are feeling the same sense of frustration today. They are tired of living in jerks. They are tired of getting up steam for a long stretch of work and then being jerked to a sudden stop by strikes.

And while they sympathize with the fact that the cost of living has gone up for miners, they also know that it has gone up for 140 million other people, most of whom do not have powerful unions which can paralyze the United States until their cost-of-living demands are met.

They also recall that it was you—supported by Bill Green and Senators Taft and Wherry—who yelled loudest for the end of controls on food, and the end of wage stabilization. This was all right for you—your mighty union is in a position to get what it wants. But it is not all right for millions of others who are unorganized.

No, John, there are some 140 million other people living in this country, who, like the young man I just quoted, believe that they also have a contract—a contract to live and work and enjoy the fruits of their toil. And there is no clause in their contract whereby one man has the right to topple the economy of their country like a juggler stopping in the middle of his act.

The American people are patient people, but I warn that their patience some day may reach the boiling point. And when that time comes, not only the hard-worn gains of labor, but the cherished guarantees by which you have the right to stand up in court and defend yourself, will be swept into one pile and go up in the same flame which Mussolini lit when he took advantage of Italian frustration.

If this time ever comes, you, John Lewis, will have done more to fan the flame than any other man in America.

Once your friend,
DREW PEARSON.

Scrapping Of Sugar Rationing Possibility

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30—(AP)—Complete scrapping of the government's sugar rationing program was viewed as a possibility by top officials Friday as the result of a federal court suit attacking OPA's sugar distribution regulations.

In giving this interpretation, one official explained to a reporter that the suit, filed by the Maple Leaf Dairies, Inc., of Brooklyn, N. Y., strikes at the very basis of sugar rationing regulations.

Under attack is OPA's use of the "base period system for arriving at amounts of sugar to be allotted to industrial and institutional users.

"If this system goes out," said the official, who declined use of his name, "it is possible that the entire sugar rationing program would go, to all practical purposes."

The firm, which has a sweetened condensed milk plant at Neenah, Wis., obtained a temporary injunction Wednesday to prevent OPA from issuing sugar rations under an amendment to its regulations affecting that industry.

The amendment provides that if firms were not engaged in manufacturing sweetened condensed milk prior to August, 1946, they would get no sugar.

No allocations can be made by OPA under that amendment pending a hearing on the suit set for December 4 before Federal Judge T. Alan Goldsborough, who now is hearing the government's contempt of court charge against UMW Chief John L. Lewis.

A GI's Dream of 'Macbeth' Becomes a 16-mm. Reality

From a GI dream, Illinois landscape, and a 16-mm. movie camera—"Macbeth." Ex-sergeant David Bradley, now star and producer of his own company, and Jain Wilimovsky emote for the benefit of classroom audiences.

By NEA Service

WINNETKA, Ill. — (NEA) — While other GIs spent their war years dreaming of home, a girl, or wine, women and song, David Bradley, a signal corps sergeant, dreamed of "Macbeth."

Today, his dream is beginning to pay off. In company with some GI friends and on a shoe-string that consisted of his own and his friends' war-time savings, Bradley is now producer, star and general factotum of his own movie producing company. No competitor of Hollywood, Bradley is producing 16 mm. sound film of Shakespeare and other literary classics for use in schools and universities.

"Macbeth," his first effort, will be premiered here next month. Two public schools, two private schools and a Chicago college already have, sight unseen, asked to show it.

Bradley was discharged from the army and started work on his first literary film the same day—appropriately enough on the anniversary of Shakespeare's birth. But most of the preliminary work already has been completed.

During his war years—in London, Paris, Brussels and Munich—Bradley prepared his scenario, and visited museums and libraries for additional background material. An air corps friend stationed in the Aleutians designed the 100 costumes. The rest of the planning work was done by mail.

Because of the scarcity of materials and a tight budget, Bradley and his co-workers scoured the area around Winnetka for "locations." The witch scenes were shot in an abandoned stone quarry near Racine, Wis., the sleepwalking scenes in a "moat" surrounding Northwestern university's Deering library, the castle scenes in a medieval castle someone had built near Rockford, Ill. One of the oldest churches in the midwest was used for the drunken porter's scene and the battles were fought at Crow Island near Winnetka and at the Oregon, Ill., state park.

Classroom Drama

The company made its own costumes, armor and other props in Bradley's home workshop.

Designed for classroom use, "Macbeth" will be edited into two parts, to be run separately or as a whole. Each part will take 45 minutes — the usual classroom period — to show.

No amateur movie-maker, Bradley started his career at Todd school, Woodstock, Ill., at 16. Orson Welles had just left the school, where he had started the movie-making, and Bradley took up where Welles left off. Since then, he has made almost a dozen films, some of which received wide critical notice. One of them, "Peer Gynt," won Bradley the "Oscar" of the year for the best non-commercial film made in this country. As a signal corps motion picture photographer, he gained additional experience.

But "Macbeth" is his most ambitious undertaking so far.

Tom Drake and Beverly Tyler are the youthful lovers in "THE GREEN YEARS" filmization of A. J. Cronin's heart-warming novel, now showing on the Fox screen today thru Wednesday. The man with the beard is none other than Charles Coburn in the role of the irascible octogenarian, Grandpa Gow.

Carmen Miranda and Phil Silvers beat it out for Vivian Blaine and Harry James in a scene from "If I'm Lucky," new musical hit which opens today at the Liberty. The other half of the Liberty bill is "Rendezvous 24," amazing story of the atomic bomb, starring William Gargan and Pat O'Moore.

BETWEEN HALVES of the Missouri-Kansas Thanksgiving day classic, Sam Molen walked onto the gridiron and was presented an award designating him as number one sports commentator of the year in the Middle West. The award, which compares in the sporting world with the Academy Award of motion pictures, was given by THE SPORTING NEWS which each year names the nation's top-ranking sports commentators. KMBC's sports directors' designating as "The Voice of Authority In Sports" is definitely substantiated by this award.

Arizona

THIS WEEK we sketch another of the famed "Texas Rangers", Arizona. Some 14 years ago "Arizona" and his banjo were first heard over KMBC and since that time he has been entertaining countless thousands with his appearances on network radio, stage and screen. His nimble wit was sharpened when he roomed with Paul Henning, former KMBC'er who now writes the "Burns and Allen" show. When "Arizona" has the time he can be found busily engaged in his hobbies of manufacturing scale models — everything from aeroplanes to life-like statuettes — horseback riding or ice skating.

Coffee or Corn

THE TUESDAY EDITION of "Rhymaline" (KMBC 7:45 a. m.) presented "Abstruse" Andrews in a rendition of "They've Got An Awful Lot of Coffee In Brazil". All comments concur—the song could have been more appropriately titled "They've Got An Awful Lot of Corn in David Andrews"! Now that we've given Irish, whose tenor voice makes Dapper Dave" sound like gravel Gertie with triple laryngitis, and Harry Jenks, whose mastery of the ivories makes up for what "Dapper" lacks, the inside dope (no reference to Andrews) we see that they are quite capable of handling the situation. Are his ears really as long as you say, Harry?

Radio-Public Series

A NEW SERIES of programs dealing with "Radio and the Public" will be presented over KMBC at 12:30 p. m. each Sunday starting today. William S. Paley, chairman of the board of the Columbia Broadcasting System, will make introductory remarks on the initial broadcast after which Lyman Bryson, counsellor on public affairs for the CBS network, will take over Featured as part of the "Time For Reason" broadcasts, the new series has been designed to broaden and expand the principles on the "complexities" of broadcasting and the broadcasters responsibility to the public. Throughout the series it is hoped to get the public response and guidance which radio needs to run a business controlled in all its ultimate decisions by the people themselves.

This and That

THE NAME OF THE SONG which is used to open and close the Tuesday evening "County Neighbors" program (KMBC 9:00 p. m.) is an old Stephen Foster melody "Happy Hours At Home". Andy Anderson of the KMBC Rythm Riders is married. When last heard from, Lou Kemper, formerly of the KMBC Brush Creek Follies, (9:15-10:30 Saturday nights) was with WFAA in Dallas, Texas. Starting Monday, December 2, "L. D. S. Morning Devotions" will be heard at 6:30 a. m. over KMBC.

And that appears to be 980 from here.

SNOWMAN

Scientist Makes Real Snow in Laboratory Cloud; Now He's Going to Try in the Sky From Plane

Snow-maker: Vincent J. Schaefer, research scientist, waves his scientific wand through the cloud he made in laboratory cold chamber. What happens inside the cloud is shown below.

By NEA Service

SCHNECTADY, N. Y.—(NEA)—The day is coming when you won't be able to blame a sudden snowstorm on the weatherman. Or on the weather.

"Ice germs": Wand, which is cooled in liquid air to minus 70 degrees, "seeds" cloud with tiny ice droplets which make this microscopic photo of first stage in transformation into snow.

A research scientist has just discovered how to make snow in the laboratory that is every bit as real as the snow you'll be shoveling off your sidewalk this winter.

During the next few months, he's going to take his snowmaking

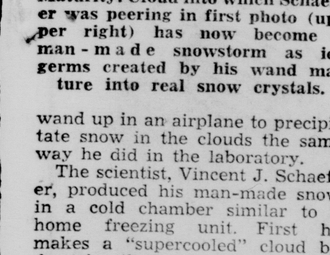

Maturity: Cloud into which Schaefer was peering in first photo (upper right) has now become a man-made snowstorm as ice germs created by his wand mature into real snow crystals.

wand up in an airplane to precipitate snow in the clouds the same way he did in the laboratory.

The scientist, Vincent J. Schaefer, produced his man-made snow in a cold chamber similar to a home freezing unit. First he makes a "supercooled" cloud by dropping the temperature to about minus five degrees, and then introducing moist air from his breath. The moist air condenses into a fog of "supercooled" droplets.

Then he waves his wand — a small metal rod, cooled below minus 31 degrees — through the chamber. This is called "seeding;" it results in the formation of submicroscopic ice particles he calls "ice germs," which begin growing until the fog vanishes and becomes a cloud of tiny snowflakes.

The snowflakes Schaefer makes in the General Electric laboratories are about one-fiftieth the size of an average natural snowflake, similar to the "diamond dust" snow that falls on cold mornings in the mountains. To study them, plastic replicas are made of individual flakes by letting them fall on a thin film of rapidly-evaporating plastic solution.

"Diamond dust": Photomicrographs of snow produced in Schaefer's cold chamber show it's the real thing. Two crystals above resemble those found on cold mornings in mountains.

Cloud Meter

Schaefer's snow-making discovery is the latest step in his continuing studies in ice research. During the war, he used his replica method of preserving snowflakes to determine effects of snow storms in producing static in aviation radio. He also developed a cloud meter which automatically measures water content of a cloud.

His experiments from an airplane in the clouds will be conducted to pursue the possibility that potential snow-clouds can be made to shed their snow when and where man wants it.

Schaefer's wand, for instance, might make it possible for a city to ward off a predicted snow storm by making the snow fall in the countryside before the storm reaches the city, thus saving a lot of snow shoveling.

It might also give the people in the countryside a slight backache, shoveling the unexpected gift of snow.

Scientists hope one day to find a drug that will cure tuberculosis. Medical research on the disease is supported by the National Tuberculosis Association from Christmas Seal funds.

Rest, under medical supervision, is the only proved cure for tuberculosis. No drug has been found that will cure the disease or create immunity to it.

Operate on Twins for Twin Ailments

David and Christopher Brooks, identical twins, are pictured at Children's Hospital, Washington, D. C., where they recently were operated on for identical infirmities. Each had an enlarged abdominal muscle that blocked food passage. They are sons of Comdr. and Mrs. Frederic W. Brooks.

Gifts to be Sent Mercy Hospital

The Bothwell Extension club held their November meeting at the home of Mrs. Earl Dirck, with Mrs. Edward Dierk as hostess. A Thanksgiving dinner was enjoyed at noon, to which all had contributed. The afternoon meeting was called to order by th president, Mrs. Earl Dirck. Devotional was given by Mrs. N. J. Knutz.

During the meeting it was decided for all the members to bring Christmas gifts to be sent to the children at Mercy Hospital, Kansas City. They are also to bring an apron or a man's handkerchief for the men and women at the county home. The following were visitors at the meeting: Miss Alice Alexander, Mrs. George Ream and son, Mrs. Lee Stevenson, Mrs. Jackson, Mrs. Frank Schouten, Mrs. Rolla Wyatt and son and Mrs. John Newland. The next meeting will be held December 12 at the home of Mrs. O. E. Richards.

Talks on 'By Ways of Folk Song'; To Helen G. Steele Music Club

Dr. Robert D. W. Adams served as guide and narrator down "Little Known By-Ways in American Folk Song," the subject of his interesting lecture at the Helen G. Steele Music club, Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 27. Dr. Adams is director of music at the University of Kansas City, as well as chairman of Folk Music in the State Federation of Music clubs, and program annotator for the Kansas City Philharmonic Orchestra for many years. His fine command of his subject and pleasant manner of presenting it made the afternoon one long to be remembered by the club members.

Mrs. E. F. Yancey, life-president, called the meeting to order and introduced Mrs. Gilbert V. Jones, who conducted a memorial service for Mrs. Charles I. Taylor.

Mrs. J. E. Golladay, chairman of the day, then introduced Dr. Adams, who was assisted by the University Quartet: Doris Cranfill, soprano; Margaret Broderson, contralto; Allen Baker, tenor, and Bob Chartrand, bass.

Dr. Adams pointed out that while some of our folk songs originated in Scotland, England or Ireland, they are nonetheless in his opinion, American folk music, being brought to this country by certain population groups and used by them here exactly as the songs were once used in the countries of their origin. Folk songs, said Dr. Adams, are not written or composed by any one person, but are the result of almost Topsy-like growth from an original idea untraceable to an individual.

Folk music of various types being indigenous to different parts of the country, examples were sung by the members of the quartet, for the most part unaccompanied as that is the manner in which folk songs are usually sung.

The music varied from religious songs to love songs, including cowboy songs, lullabies, and songs showing the influence of the American Indian. Underlying all of the melodies, Dr. Adams pointed out, there seems to linger a note of tragedy or poignancy. The titles of some of the songs indicated this tendancy, such as, "The Wheels of the Wagon Are Broken," "O Bury Me Beneath the Willow," "Careless Love," and "The Little Sparrow." The quartet's rendition of "Barbara Allen," accompanied by Dr. Adams, was particularly enjoyed.

University Women

The American Association of University Women will meet at 8:00 o'clock Monday night at the home of Miss Florence Hert, 615 West Third street.

Hostesses with Miss Hert will be Miss Marian Smith, Mrs. S. K. Ray, Mrs. George Lockett, Miss Edyth Couey.

The program will be "Christmas Music," with Mrs. Charles William Faulkner in charge.

Parents Club to Have Meeting on Thursday

The Parents' Club of Sacred Heart school will meet Thursday afternoon, December 5, at 2:30 o'clock, in the school cafeteria. A short program will be presented. Everyone interested is welcome to attend.

Miss Alexander At Sorosis

The Sorosis program this week will be both interesting and practical, with Miss Alice Alexander, Home Demonstration Agent for Pettis County Extension Service, as the main speaker.

Miss Alexander is a graduate of Drury College in Springfield, receiving her A. B. degree in home economics, and took post-graduate work at the University of Missouri. She taught economics for several years in Lebanon and was for six years with the Farm Security as home economist. She came to Pettis county last fall, where she has thirty-five extension clubs under her direction. She was largely responsible for the Home Demonstration show this fall at Liberty park, in which the thirty-five clubs participated.

Mrs. L. G. Berry, who will also be a speaker at the meeting, will tell what the Sunnyside Homemakers' club has meant to that community. Mrs. Berry has been one of the leaders in the chrysanthemum show held at the court house in recent years.

Miss Helen Bowers will be the program chairman.

This will be the last program until after the new year.

102,000 Fans See The Army Beat Navy

Army's Three-Year Run Unbeaten Still Holds After Battle

By Sid Feder

MUNICIPAL STADIUM, Philadelphia, Nov. 30—(AP)—Army's careening Cadets wound up their three-year run unbeaten today, but only by the squeaky margin of three extra points 21 to 18 as the Navy picked itself off the floor from its worst season in history to battle the mightiest gridiron machine of a generation to a standstill.

The only reason the impossible didn't happen was because the "monster and his play-mate"—Doc Blanchard and Glenn Davis—set off all their sizzling fireworks in the first half, and the Middie kicking toes couldn't hit the bulls-eye.

Navy's Second Half

From the start of the second half it was Navy's ball game, as the up-to-now meek Middies, mauled and manhandled in seven straight starts up to today, gave the Cadets the fight of their lives.

It was a slashing, smashing battle these fiercely fighting future admirals put up—a fight that saw them dug in on Army's five yard line and still rolling when the clock ran out of time to put an end to what appeared the makings of one of the most amazing upsets this game of moleskin mayhem has ever seen.

It left the 102,000 spectators hanging on the ropes and gasping as the Middies stopped B. and D. to a slow walk in the final two periods and sailed down-field for two touchdowns on their own.

President Truman, the former artilleryman who is strictly neutral in this brawl every year, sat in his 50-yard line box on the Navy side of the field through the first half and saw the Black Knights of the Hudson pull the customers out of their seats as Davis dashed 13 yards for the first score, Blanchard bulled his way 52 yards for a second and then Davis hit Blanchard with a 27-yard pass in the end zone for a third to give Army a 21-6 edge at the half.

Jack Ray, the Texan with the thread-a-needle toe, booted the point after each one of these tallies.

Middie Put Up Drive

The Middies drove 82 yards between Army's first and second touchdowns for one of their own, that put them behind only 7-6, with the second quarter started. Then they clawed and dug and inched their way 78 yards more in the third period, and finally, capitalizing on a queer quarterbacking stunt by the usually errorless Arnold Tucker late in the third period, they clicked for 35 yards in a hurry for their last marker early in the fourth.

In Reaves (Base) Baysinger, tall, slim Syracuse, N. Y., quarterback who never did any signal-calling before the Notre Dame clash three weeks, ago, and Bill Hawkins of Richmond, Va., fresh off the hospital list, they had the scoring punch. Base scored the first marker on a one-yard sneak through the line, and Hawkins hit the jackpot for the second one, from two yards out.

Blanchard Fails To Gain

And for the final one, for which they got the opportunity when Tucker called for a fourth-down rush well in his own territory and Blanchard failed to make the distance they unfurled Bill Earl, a tiny 160-pound pitcher from Arlington, Va. Bill tossed a short one which Leon Bramlett, the Navy captain from Clarksdale, Miss., caught in the end zone.

Nine of Army's starting 11—headed by D. and B.—wound up their careers with a win, squeaky as it was. It's the end of the road for them, and for a football era that probably won't be seen again in a long, long time—if ever. For it's the end of the war-time football that loaded the two service schools with talent at the expense of many of the other colleges.

As for Navy, with most of its present squad returning, it may mark the beginning of a run in which the Middies can catch up somewhat on their Army rivals.

Amos Alonzo Stagg Gets College of The Pacific Offer

STOCKTON, Calif., Nov. 30—(AP)—Amos Alonzo Stagg, at 84 the dean of the nation's football coaches, has been offered an athletic post in an "advisory capacity" at The College of The Pacific — where he has been the active head coach since 1933.

This development possibly presaging the end of an active coaching career which goes back through more than five decades, the bulk of them at the University of Chicago, was confirmed by several reliable sources.

Sport Scraps

By D. KELLY SCRUTON

THERE has been a lot of talk—talk about Missouri and Don Faurot. Well I saw Missouri play Thanksgiving Day, and wasn't too happy on seeing Faurot charge out on the field when the ball was down in the shadows of the goal posts. But I since learned he thought the Tigers were being penalized because of sending in a player and was out there fighting for what he thought was right—in spite of not having a team who was doing some of their own fighting on the gridiron.

Faurot was only making sure, I was told. But it didn't make much difference, because the Missouri boys just seemed to have given up. To me Kansas, a smaller team was just wide awake, had their eyes open and took advantage of every break that Missouri GAVE them in fumbles. It can't all be blamed on the coach.

I talked with several persons in Columbia about the team. From the father of a player on the team. Incidentally he doesn't live within a radius of 100 miles of Sedalia either, there is or was friction among the players on the team. As another said, well the older boys had already made their letter, and what happened didn't make much difference.

With fricton on the team and that attitude it can easily be seen that their heart wasn't any too far in the game. Maybe next season, in spite of the big army of players who want to play, the bad influence can be "weeded out", and those who are actually there to play the game because they love it will get their chances.

Maybe because you are from Kansas City or St. Louis, you might have had a better chance for the team this season, but the Alumni boys from those places are not going to want to see Missouri lose too often because they may be pressuring someone to get a boy from the home town on the squad. They'll have to open their eyes JUST LIKE KANSAS DID IN THE GAME, see the light and also some of our country boys.

Anyway don't start talking about coach changes. Faurot is a boy who has had Conference Champions, Bowl teams, and he still obtains the qualifications of giving Missouri some more winning ball clubs.

IT'S like early in the season when Smith-Cotton was losing their openers. Coach Ralph "Stub" Dow was certainly behind the "8" ball. I even heard a man up in the school circles here make the remark, "I wonder about Dow". Now the season is over and I shall say he admits "There isn't any wondering. Dow's predictions were right.

After all the coach knows his troubles and sooner or later he gets them all ironed out, and then everybody is happy.

In the face of lack of early season practice, Dow and Coach Bob Rogers, came through to produce for the first time for Smith-Cotton high school an UNDISPUTED CONFERENCE CHAMPION.

Not a conference game was lost.

LAST Friday night the Missouri Pacific Eagles softball team held it's annual dinner. It was really a nice affair and everyone had a most enjoyable time eating and listening to the speakers get off steam. Incidentally, I was called out on a story and left Mrs. Scruton to cover the dinner and meeting.

Later when she "reported" she said, it was a lot of fun and I really enjoyed every minute of it. And she also reminded me that the Stadium discussion is up again. This time E. E. Ellsworth made a talk and really told the group what was needed in Sedalia.

Manager Hank Williams reviewing the past season of the Eagles and indicated the team would be really strong and up and coming in 1947.

Palmer Nichols, who acted as toastmaster of the meeting, gave a short talk and rather heckled some of those present. Was I glad I was on a story, because, knowing Nick, I probably would have been given the works. Nick agrees on the stadium situation and I shall have more to give out on this project later.

Intra-Mural Cage Teams Announced

Schedule Ready and Games Start This Week at High School

The Intra-Mural basketball season gets underway this week, Coach Albert Steiner, in charge, announced Saturday. The schedule has twenty-four teams listed, the largest since Intra-Mural basketball was started at Smith-Cotton high school, the previous largest season being with nineteen teams.

The schedule calls for sixty games plus six play-off games of the division leaders. The season is expected to be completed the middle of February with the play-off games to follow within the closing week.

All boys are eligible other than those who are playing on the varsity team or are suited out in the second team squad.

Community BB League Starts Monday 16th

Appears Ten Teams Will Be Organized For This Season

The proposed Community Basketball League has passed the planning stage and at the present time appears to be a definite reality. The league is set to go on Monday night, December 16th, with games to be played in the Smith-Cotton gymnasium.

At first it was hoped that as many as five or six teams could be organized. At the present time it appears that approximately ten teams will be organized to compete in this weekly affair.

Players range in age from recent high school stars to those who participated actively with such teams out of Sedalia's basketball past as Nichol's Five Pennies and the Adco Chemists.

Monday night, December 2nd, has been set aside as a practice night when managers will have a chance to organize their playing personnel. The practice time for each team is as follows: (Practice will be held at Smith-Cotton).

6:45 Typers and Mo. Pac Apprentice Club.
7:35 Pepsi-Cola and Sacred Heart.
8:25 American Legion (Post 16) and Nichol's Five Pennies.
9:15 Pickups and Reclaimers, and Adco Chemists.

The Mark Twain District Team and the Sedalia Police Team will practice at Sacred Heart at 7:30 P. M.

At the organizational meeting held last Monday night, the following league rules were adopted:

1. Each team shall be limited to eight players.
2. Four of the eight players must be present to start the game or the team must forfeit. (A fifth "average player" may be recruited as a starter if the opposing manager agrees.)
3. After a player has played in a game as a member of one team, he cannot change to another team.
4. If a team loses players during a season the team may make additions to bring its active player strength to eight, provided that no players may be added after a team has played its fifth game.
5. If "hardship cases" appear during the season's play, a committee of managers will be appointed to decide each case on its merits.
6. The purpose of the league is purely recreational.
7. Referees are to be selected by the committee in charge.
8. All equipment necessary will be furnished by Smith-Cotton with the natural exception of player suits and shoes.
9. High school students are ineligible for league play.

Sedalia "Typers" Defeat Bunceton

The Sedalia Typewriter company basket ball team beat the Bunceton team Wednesday night by a score of 46 to 34, at Bunceton.

The high point man of Sedalia for that game was R. E. Carver, forward, with a score of 12 points. For Bunceton it was Draffin with 14.

The line up for Sedalia was: Bud Michaelis, forward made 11 points; R. E. Carver, forward 12; John Mais, center collected 11 points; Vernden Eckhoff, guard, 2 points; and Vergile Berkenbible, guard, 2 points. The substitutes were John Hazel forward, who made 6 points; R. Rohrech, guard, Cecil Allison, forward, 2 points and Elmer Berkenbible, forward. The coaches for Sedalia were Sam Raskin with Morris Turner assistant.

The line up for Bunceton was; Fahrinbrink, center, 8 points; Draffin, guard 14 points; Kahley, guard, 8 points; Hurt, guard, 2 points; Gerhardy forward 2 points; McCoy forward and Daniels forward.

Rose Bowl-Bound UCLA Whip Huskers

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 30—(AP)—The Rose Bowl-bound Bruins of UCLA ended a perfect grid campaign today—the first in the 29-year history of the blue and gold—with an 18 to 0 triumph over the Cornhuskers of Nebraska before 52,558 fans in Memorial Coliseum.

Scoring two touchdowns in the second quarter and one more in the final period, the UCLAns finished the 1946 schedule with 10 straight wins, no ties, and a total of 313 points to 72 for their opponents.

Thus the slate was clean for UCLA's clash in the Rose Bowl New Year's Day with the University of Illinois, whose scouts saw little new in the free-wheeling Bruin machine today.

Coach Bert Labrucherie used his best speed burners, and the Bruins rolled up yardage by the mouthful against a stubborn Cornhusker squad that never surrendered until the end.

Three times the Huskers stopped the Bruins inside the ten yard line, once on the one, but they could never mount a sustained drive and crossed the midfield stripe themselves but twice—the farthest to the Bruin 46-yard line.

The UCLAns put on three marches that paid off. The first was good for 54 yards, with Quarterback Ernie Case topping it off with a 25 yard pass to Left End Burr Baldwin in the end zone. The second came on a 29-yard thrust, with Fullback Jack Myers going over from the two. A 73-yard parade, with Halfback Al Hoisch going for the final five, concluded the scoring.

Case had a bad day converting. He missed all three tries.

The UCLAns ran up 433 yards to 63 yards via the ground and air, with little Halfback Skip Rowland the day's leading gainer—128 yards in 19 runs with the ball.

Sooners Smother Okla A & M 73-12

STILLWATER, Okla., Nov. 30—(AP)—The University of Oklahoma, unleashing a devastating ground and aerial attack that earned them better than a point a minute, smothered the Oklahoma Aggies 73-12 today.

It was just that easy for the Sooners, who scored 10 touchdowns, 10 points after touchdowns and a field goal in a run-away that avenged last year's 47-0 defeat at the hands of the Aggies.

The Aggies, who found at the start their passing attack was no good against the ferocious sooner line, were stopped cold until the final period when, against last line O. U. reserves, they made their three first downs and two touchdowns.

The Sooners scored practically every way possible, and the game was chocked full of brilliant runs and passes and a half dozen backs stood out for the winners.

Arkansas Gets First Title In 13 Years

DALLAS, Nov. 30—(AP)—Jimmy Stewart, executive secretary of the Southwest Conference, announced here today that Louisiana State University and the University of Arkansas would meet in the Cotton Bowl here New Year's Day.

Arkansas, in gaining a share of the Southwest championship—its first title glory in 13 years—won five conference games and lost one. In full season play, the Razorbacks won six tilts, lost three and tied one. Two of their defeats were close. They lost to Mississippi 9-7 and to Tulsa 14-13. The most decisive licking handed the Razorbacks was 20-0, by Texas.

Louisiana State edged Rice 7-6 in the opening game of the season on a muddy field. The Tigers swept aside Mississippi State and Texas A. and M. before losing to Georgia Tech 26-7. Then followed victories over Vanderbilt, Mississippi, Alabama, Miami, Fordham and Tulane.

The fact that L. S. U. beat Mississippi 34-21 and Mississippi defeated Arkansas probably will make the Tigers favorites in the Cotton Bowl.

Notre Dame Unbeaten For 1946 Season

Defeated Southern California 26 to 6 Before 56,000 Fans

By Jerry Liska

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 30—(AP)—A Tiny Texan, 160-pound Coy McGee, fired Notre Dame to a relentless 26 to 6 closing triumph over stubborn Southern California to give absent Irish Coach Frank Leahy his first undefeated season since 1941 before a capacity crowd of 56,000 at Notre Dame stadium today.

As slashing and explosive as the "coachless" Irish were in piling up their eighth victory against a scoreless tie with Army for the season, they couldn't stop the inspired Trojans from scoring the first touchdown against Notre Dame's first stringers and making it 13 to 6 ball game until the final period.

First Irish Score—McGee

McGee, whose first name Leahy couldn't recall for sports writers in early practices, streaked 77 yards for the first Irish score in the second quarter, seconds after he gallopped 50 yards on another break-away. The Longview, Tex., fireball launched a 13-point Irish attack in the final period with an eight-yard payoff jaunt around end.

With Leahy at home bed-ridden with a cold and "nervous exhaustion," the Irish ploughed to 26 first downs against Southern California's nine and an amazing 517 yards by rushing against 108.

Yet, it took McGee's phantom-like flitting to spark them to their brace of six-pointers in the second and fourth period.

Touchdown Pass

The second Notre Dame touchdown was fashioned of a 22-yard pass from reserve quarter George Ratterman to substitute end Leon Hart, while the final score in the last quarter came on second string halfback Gerry Cowhig's 13-yard spring.

Southern California, held beyond the 50 the first half, exploded for a 45-yard touchdown drive late in the third period when Johnny Naumu squirmed over from the one-foot stripe.

It took a Notre Dame pass interference on a goal-line toss from George Murphy intended for Naumu to set up the touchdown.

Big Night When Graham Meets Lopez

'Cowboy" Challenged The Mexican for the Matches On Tuesday

2 falls out of 3—with a 45-minute limit

Special Event

Al Galento vs Terry McGinnis
Orange, N. J. — Columbus, Ohio
Best one-fall with a 30-minute limit

Place: State Guard Armory.
Time: 8:30 P. M. Tuesday.

A rough house wrestling card certainly can be expected Tuesday night when Roy "Cowboy" Graham of Dallas, Texas, and Vincent Lopez, Mexico City Mexico, clash in the main event of the Tuesday night Pettis County Post No. 16, American Legion, wrestling card. Graham challenged Lopez last week after seeing the beating the Mexican gave Frank Hewitt.

Lopez and Graham, nice appearing fellows outside of the ring, are considering the roughest, dirtiest mat men to appear in the local mat ring. Both in conversations last week while "outside" talked about the things they like to do, and both indicated the rougher it gets in the ring, "the better we like it". So anything can happen Tuesday.

The Frank Hewitt and Ray Villmer clash isn't expected to be anything like a "tea party" and they are expected to try to outdo the main event. Hewitt isn't any "softy" and Villmer is anything but a "creampuff".

Tony Galento's wrestling relation, Al Galento of Orange, N. J., comes back to Sedalia for the special event. Al is matched up with Terry McGinnis, Columbus, Ohio, who is plenty good. This likewise should be a match to start the fans to get warmed up for the big feature semi-windup and main events.

Everything possible is being done to get a new referee to handle the matches to the liking of local fans. Gus Karras, in discussing the "third man" situation, declared he never saw a crowd of wrestling fans harder to please than those here. "These Sedalia people like their wrestling, they like action, and that's what I am going to try and give them. And if it's in my power, somewhere, someplace, I'll find the right third man for them," Karras said.

MoPac Eagles Give a Dinner

The annual dinner of the Missouri Pacific Eagles soft-ball team was held in the Pine room of the Interlude at 7 o'clock Friday evening. The Master of Ceremonies was Palmer Nichols. H. L. Williams, manager, made a short talk on the past season.

A quartet, consisting of Bob Wild, Paul Ginn, Aubrey Case and Carl Yessen, entertained at the dinner with some musical numbers.

The next speaker was E. L. Ellsworth, whose topic was "The Need of a Stadium and the Broading of the Recreational Program in Sedalia."

Mr. F. H. Rose then gave a short talk followed by Ellsworth Green, Secretary of Chamber of Commerce, the principal speaker, with the topic, "Sports in India."

Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Berthoux and Mr. and Mrs. D. Kelly Scruton.

Sunday School Cage League Starts Jan. 4

The Sunday school basketball league is to get underway soon. First practice sessions will be held on Saturday, December 14, at Smith-Cotton high school at which time teams will start organizing.

The first of scheduled games are to start on Saturday, January 4, at which time the game schedule will be announced.

In an endeaver to take care of more boys in this basketball play, boys in the seventh, eighth and freshman year of high school will be eligible to play with the various church teams. Already six teams are in the making and it is the hope to have several more before the schedule is drafted.

President Sees Army-Navy Game

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30—(AP)—President and Mrs. Truman returned to Washington tonight from the Army-Navy game at Philadelphia, with their daughter, Margaret, a surprise guest aboard their special train.

Miss Truman drove from New York, where she has been studying voice, to board the football special before it pulled out—more than an hour late—from the railroad siding near the Philadelphia Municipal Stadium.

The delay was attributed to traffic congestion into Washington.

The President's train arrived at Washington at 7:45 P. M. (EST).

Margaret telephoned her father between halves of the game, informing him a secret service agent was driving her to join the Presidential party. Mr. Truman talked to his daughter over a telephone in the stands beneath his box.

Byron Nelson Out Of Retirement Again

ORLANDO, Fla., Nov. 30—(AP)—Byron Nelson, the "Mr. Big" of American golf until his retirement several months ago, will come out of seclusion in February to take on Britain's top player in a "showdown" match somewhere in Florida.

Nelson, who quit tournament golf for a ranch in Texas, has accepted the challenge of Dai Rees, Britain's leading money winner, for a specific test of Anglo-American golfing supremacy, PGA Tournament Manager Fred Cocoran said today.

Plate Glass Window At Cafe Shattered

A large plate glass window on the east side of the Pacific cafe, Main and Osage avenue, was accidentally shattered Friday night at about nine o'clock when the weight of too many people leaning against it caused it to fall in.

L. C. Corley, agent for the company carrying insurance for the Pacific cafe, estimated the cost of replacing the window at approximately $85.00.

Church Events

The Wesley Fellowship class of the Fifth Street Methodist church will have a Christmas banquet and party in the church basement at 6:30 p. m. Wednesday. Everyone attending is requested to bring a toy, costing not more than twenty-five cents. Important business matters will be discussed and every member is urged to attend.

Mrs. Earl Johnson was hostess to the Women's Missionary Union of Memorial Baptist church, eighteen miles northeast, November 27. She was assisted by Miss Blanche Anderson. A contributive dinner was served at the noon hour.

The meeting was opened at 2 o'clock that afternoon by the president, Mrs. Myron C. Harper. The devotional was led by Mrs. Willie Dilthey and Mrs. Earl Johnson. Roll call was answered by a verse of Scripture.

Mrs. Wray Schroeder tendered her resignation as secretary of the union as she is leaving the community. Mrs. Charles Singer was elected to take her place.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. E. A. Philips, December 18, at which time the Sunshine Pals will be revealed. Each one is requested to bring her sunshine gift, and also a small gift for an exchange of gifts.

The Circles of the Federated Guild of the Congregational-Presbyterian church will meet Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock as follows:

Circle No. 1, with Mrs. A. C. Stoffel, 1113 West Second street with Mrs. Kenneth Love and Mrs. Oscar Leslie as assisting hostesses.

Circle No. 2, with Mrs. Charles Bard, 209 East Broadway with Mrs. Fred Stuber and Mrs. Heston Green, as assisting hostesses.

This will be the Christmas party with exchange of gifts.

The Builder's Circle of the Broadway Presbyterian church will meet Thursday, December 5, at the home of Mrs. Neal Powers, 616 West Seventh. Mrs. John Loague will be the co-hostess. Mrs. John Miers and Mrs. George Miller will be in charge of the program.

The Women's Council of the First Christian church will meet Thursday. Miss Mary Hurlbut, missionary from Africa, will be the guest speaker. The official board will meet at 11:30. At 12:15 a luncheon will be served by Circle No. 4, Miss Tracy Berry, chairman. The council meeting will follow at 1:15.

The Girl Scouts of Sedalia, during the month of November, devoted their activities to the Girl Scout law, "A Girl's Scout's duty is to be useful and to help others." Troop 17 seniors, Mrs. E. T. Dillard, leader, helped in the library and the county nurse on Saturday mornings. Troop 3 and 17, Smith-Cotton and troop 28 Sacred Heart, assisted in the "Tag Day" for Gold Star mothers, November 23.

Troops 12, 17, 20 and 26, folded seals and letters and distributed posters for the Tuberculosis League.

Brownie troop 57, Mark Twain, Mrs. F. A. Kueck and Mrs. R. C. Wells, leaders, a cartoon of jellies and canned goods to Melita Nursery, novelty candy favors to Minneola Nursery and turkey favors to Bothwell hospital.

Troop 21 Sacred Heart with Mrs. E. M. Franke leader, a fancy box of fruit and candy to the County Home, and presented a short program.

Troop No. 1, the Singing Scouts with its leader, Mrs. A. R. Beach, gave a program Wednesday evening at which time Mrs. Dillard expressed the 'Thanks' of the Girl Scout organization of Sedalia and the community, for their splendid support.

Brownie troop 54 Whittier, Mrs. W. A. Morgan and Mrs. H. R. Kettle, leaders, with the troop took five fruit boxes to Bothwell hospital Tuesday afternon.

Book markers for the library were made by troop 19, 26, 28, 54, 57 and 58. Favors for the hospital, Brownie troops 52, 59 and 62.

There will be a special handicraft meeting Tuesday, December 3, at one o'clock in the Episcopal parish hall, Ohio near Broadway, for a demonstration of Christmas favors. Mrs. Harry Lambirth, training chairman, will be in charge of the session.

Red Cross Corner

Believe it or not, Mrs. John C. McLaughlin, chairman of knitting, has just received a new consignment of yarn for children's slip-over sweaters. These are to be made in sizes ranging from 2 to 12 years, and the yarn is the old, familiar OD. These sweaters are a part of our Foreign Relief, and Mrs. McLaughlin is counting on her knitting volunteers, in spite of the incipient holidays. So, Red Cross Knitters, please squeeze a sweater in your pre-Christmas time budget. They are not large, and you have all had so much experience that the knitting of one of the little garments will not take much time. Meanwhile the children of Europe are cold and in need of our help.

Mr. C. F. Scotten, Chairman of Accident Prevention, has informed us that a class for teachers will be conducted the last week of January. Benton county will participate in this program, and the representative from the area office plans an interesting and instructive series of classes. The course will be a six-hour streamliner.

Ernest Vornbrock, special field representative from the area office, St. Louis, was in Sedalia last Monday. He discussed the Red Cross First Aid program with the chairman, Dr. K. L. Holdren, and formulated plans for new classes, and refresher classes, both to be held shortly after the first of the year.

Cutters! We had expected to write a thank you note in the column this week. But as the response to our SOS was so disappointing, we can only repeat our request: "We need cutters, we need them urgently." The chairman, Mrs. Fred Brink, is cutting herself to the tune of 20 or 25 an afternoon. With a number of volunteers she can get these garments, boys' short pants, into the hands of the needlewomen who are willing to make them. In spite of Christmas, in spite of having a million and one things to do, will you help once more?

Neighbors Chop, Haul And Saw Wood

A group of neighbors met at the home of Charles McNeal, near Syracuse, Wednesday, and chopped, hauled and sawed wood. The following men were present: Walter Burns, Aubrey, Charles and Emery Myers, Harry Sponcler, Everett Robertson, Owen and Charles Sousley, Jack Hays, Buck, Floyd and Charles McNeal, Ed Steele, Oliver Stahl, Charles Self, Roger Kirchner, Frank and Walter Jeffers, and Charles Combs.

Aid Association Elects Officers

Local Branch 427 of the Aid Association for Lutherans held its monthly meeting last Tuesday evening at St. Paul's Lutheran church. The program committee had arranged for a safety program. Sergeant Burgeland, of the Highway Patrol, gave a talk on safety and also showed two films showing the cause of so many accidents and also how these could be corrected. He was introduced by Erhart Kruse, chairman of the program committee. Sergeant Rhodecker was also at the meeting with Sergeant Burgeland.

Election of local officers was also held. Officers for the coming year will be: President, Oscar Monsees; vice president, Gilbert Kueck; secretary-treasurer, E. C. Schlichting.

Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the meeting.

Charge Selling Beer Without License

Luther Deacon McGary, charged with selling beer without a license, was arraigned Friday before the court of A. M. Harlan, justice of the peace, and pleaded not guilty. His bond was set at $750 and the case continued until December 3.

Be Winterwise WINTERIZE

Winter plays havoc with unprotected cars year in and year out. Every winter thousands of unhappy motorists wake up on a cold morning to find a "sick" car in the garage, and in most cases it can be easily avoided. Before really bitter weather arrives, have your car checked for winter driving. You'll save time, money, and a world of inconvenience. Let us do it now.

Names Drawn In Gift Exchange

The Lone Star Parent-Teacher Association met on Thursday evening at the school hous- The meeting opened with the president, Mrs. H. J. Billings, in charge. The "Together Song" was sung, with Genevieve Billings at the piano. Mrs. Billings read Psalms 136:1-12 as the devotional, and the audience recited "The Lord's Prayer."

Names were drawn for an exchange of gifts at the Christmas program at which time the P. T. A. will serve candy to all present. The following program was presented by Mrs. Harold Kehl:

Piano solo, "Minuet in G"—Elinor Van Dyke.

Exercise, "We Spell Thanksgiving"—Catherine Rohr, Everett Billings, Elmer Van Dyke, Genevieve Billings, Elinor Van Dyke and Mary Schwartz.

Song, "What the Turkey Said"—School children.

Song, "About Thanksgiving"—Billy Jobe.

Poem, "For the Day"—Helen Anderson.

Piano solo, "Tarantella"—Elmer Van Dyke.

Debate, "Resolved, That Thanksgiving Day Should Be a Day of Fasting Instead of Feasting"—Affirmative, Leroy Van Dyke; negative, Gordon Leiter.

Turkey Dinner Held by Club

Twenty-eight members and three visitors, Mrs. John Wall, Mrs. Jesse Tevis and Miss Alice Alexander, of the Prairie Ridge Homemakers club enjoyed a turkey dinner at the home of Mrs. Harry Tevis Wednesday.

Mrs. J. O. Coffelt had charge of the business meeting.

The health letter was read by Mrs. Charlie Tevis. Plans were made to entertain the members and families of the 4-H club on December 11 at the home of Mrs. J. O. Coffelt. Miss Alice Alexander gave an interesting talk Miss Willie Johnson had charge of the devotional. Reports were given by some of the project leaders.

The next meeting will be December 18 at the home of Mrs. Hall Alexander.

A Vital Warning to Every American

Atomic bombs, now made cheaply and in large numbers, will become more destructive.

There is no military defense against them and none is to be expected.

Other nations can rediscover our secret processes by themselves and produce bombs.

Preparedness against atomic warfare is futile and could ruin our social structure.

If war comes, atomic bombs will be used and they will destroy our civilization.

Only solution to the problem is international control of atomic energy.

Community News from CLARKSBURG

Mrs. Maude Albin

The revival which began at the Baptist church last week is still in progress. Large crowds are attending each service. The evangelist Rev. W. B. Smith of California is officiating. Services are held at 7:30 p. m. each evening.

Mrs. Eva Whittaker returned home last weekend after spending several weeks with her daughter Mrs. Leta Dunn of Wheatland, Ind., who has been ill. She was in the hospital for some time.

Mr. and Mrs. William Sander and children Clara Ann, Anthony and Marilyn of Moberly were dinner guests Saturday of her parents Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Battles and son Jeff. They brought Mrs. Sander's sister Miss Pearl Battles home after she had spent a few months with them.

Rev. Denzil Albin of Jefferson City spent Wednesday with his parents Mr. and Mrs. George W. Albin. He hunted a portion of the day and killed several rabbits. He and his wife plan to attend the Baptist Training Union convention at St. Louis Thanksgiving day the day following.

Mrs. Leonard Martin and Mrs. G. P. Martin were shopping in Jefferson City Thursday.

Lawrence Renshaw and Bud Meyers of Kansas City spent Tuesday with Lawrence' mother Mrs. Lula Renshaw.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Battles, Jr., had as their Sunday dinner guests her mother Mrs. Leo Hentges, son John and daughter Cathleen of Centertown.

Mrs. Dameron went with Mrs. Lottie Shackleford to the Columbia Clinic Wednesday where she remained for an observation. She has been in ill health for several months Mrs. Arthur Elliott of southwest of Clarksburg, is caring for Mrs. Shackleford's two children at the Elliott home.

George Toler, north of town, has been quite ill.

Mrs. Cleo Van Stratten still remains at the Baptist hospital in Saint Louis for further observation.

The "Willing Workers" club met last Wednesday with Mrs. Maude Leonard at her home in north Clarksburg. Several guests were present. Quilting was the principal occupation of the day. A contributive luncheon was served at the noon hour.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Snodgrass, Mrs. Eula Cain and Ray Wells went to Mount Vernon sanitarium Friday where Mrs. Cain underwent an observation test. She returned with them.

Mr. and Mrs. Cloyd Shea and aunt Mrs. Nola Martin spent Saturday in California and Tipton.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Van Stratten of Jefferson City were Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Birdsong. The Van Strattens are having repair work done on their residence in south Clarksburg.

Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Inglish have brought the residence property in Tipton of Rev. J. L. Freeman on Morgan street. They have rented their farm, north of Cross Lane school.

The closing out sale, which was held Friday at the James Fulks farm, just east of Clarksburg had a large attendance and both stock and farm implements and household articles brought good prices.

A family dinner was given on Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bruce. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Jess Bruce, Mr. and Mrs. William Bruce and daughter Patty of Clarksburg, Mr. and Mrs. Golder Bruce and daughter, Joyce Ann of Jefferson and Mrs. Jess Bruce's sister Mrs. E. W. Green of Little Rock, Ark.

Mrs. Green left Monday for her home in Little Rock after spending a few weeks with her sisters Mrs Jess Bruce and Mrs. Tom Vaughan.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Birdsong are the parents of a daughter born Monday morning at the home of her parents Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Wilhams, south of Clarksburg.

Alaska's 1945 fur crop totaled 223,800 pelts.

Trailer And Welding Outfit Is Wrecked

Considerable damage resulted to the portable electric welding machine of the Jolly Welding Shop, 508 West Second street, Friday evening, when the trailer on which it was attached, overturned ten miles south of Sedalia on highway 65. The car pulling the trailer was driven by Roscoe "Rocky" Carver.

The trailer, it was reported, broke loose from its's hitch and swerved on the pavement overturning. It did not cause Carver to loose control of the car.

The machine is owned by James Jolly.

No Time for Vodka . . .

Orange Juice, Scotch, and Plain American Food Satisfy UN Delegates' Appetites

Nobody bothered to note what Soviet delegate Andrei Gromyko had in this glass when he quenched his thirst between acts at the opera. Chances are it's Scotch, or even orange juice — but not vodka, if you take the word of the bartender at the delegates' lounge at UN headquarters.

By NEA Service

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., (NEA) —UN delegates may be a pretty worldly lot, but when it comes to eating and drinking, their tastes are just as plebian as those of the average American.

This information comes from a source that ought to know — the men responsible for preparing the food and mixing the drinks for the big shots.

"They like to do things American, eat and drink," says Arthur Schleifer, who operates the bars and dining rooms for the UN. And Arthur Rice, bartender at the delegates' lounge, backs him up. Rice says he hasn't had a single request for any "foreign style drinks."

"All they want here is Scotch and orange juice," Rice says.

Delegates can start their drinking half an hour before the session begins but many of them stick to the soft stuff—mostly just orange juice.

"Cases and cases of oranges are squeezed for juice," says Schleifer. Cocktail drinkers seem to prefer Manhattans, but the biggest demand in the hard liquor department is for Scotch and after that rye and Bourbon. Rice keeps a bottle of vodka on hand just in case, but nobody has ordered any so far.

Although the Russian delegation brought a number of cases of both vodka and cognac with them on the Queen Elizabeth when they arrived for the General Assembly, it had nothing to do with what they're ordering over the UN bar.

Ann Corcoran, hostess at the delegates' dining room, says the diplomats drink quite a lot of beer with luncheon, and their appetites are pretty normal. Luncheon is served buffet style with a huge bowl of fruit dominating the serving table. Miss Corcoran spends a lot of time making that fruit look pretty, but as far as the delegates are concerned it is just something else to eat.

"It disappears in a few minutes. The foreign delegates eat a lot more fruit than the Americans do," she says. "They really go in for cheese and fresh fruit."

Luncheon consists of such things as fresh ham, roast beef, lobster or chicken salad, and green salad.

"We don't serve foreign foods," Schleifer says, although he admits that a lot of American dishes are of foreign origin. "And we haven't had one special request for a foreign dish. We've come to the conclusion that these top diplomats have feasted the world over, and they didn't come here for a gastronomical treat."

Apple pie and ice cream are the favorite desserts. About the only thing the delegates avoided at first was cole slaw, Miss Corcoran says. "Some of the foreigners never heard of it before. Now they go for it."

Languages are no problem at the buffet because the delegates just look things over and help themselves, but at the General Assembly dining room in Flushing they had to round up a bunch of waiters who could double as interpreters; the waiters who got the jobs can handle 18 different languages among them.

Ireland's linen industry flourished as early as 1210.

"Soup Suicide"

Sentenced to eight years in a French prison, Regis Rondeau committed suicide by jumping into a boiling cauldron of soup being prepared for the prisoners, when he received a letter saying his wife was going to divorce him.

Who Died . . . Who Was Born?

Social and Economic Blight Grips City Without a Newspaper Since Sept. 27

For 160,000 People in Springfield, Mass., There is Only a Thin Trickle of News From Out-of-Town Papers

By Allan Keller
NEA Special Correspondent

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Nov. 26. (NEA)—The most popular mass in the local Catholic churches is the first one at seven o'clock. It has been so for the last two months—not for any religious reason, but because a churchgoer at the first mass can hope to pick up a Sunday paper from Boston, Hartford or New York from one of the newsboys stationed near the churches.

If you're late you go without a paper. Since September 27 there have been no papers published locally because of a strike, and this Connecticut river city of 160,000 is in the grip of a social and economic blight that grows worse day by day.

Psychologically the effect is depressing. Friends meet on the sidewalk and hesitate to ask each other about other friends or relatives. They did when the strike was new, but so often the reply followed a pattern—"Didn't you know? He was buried Saturday"—that now certain questions are never asked.

Babies are born, men and women die, couples are married in Springfield and word of the events crawls slowly about by word of mouth. Florists are taking a terrible beating, with sales at about 50 per cent of normal, because vital notices are not read by friends and relatives and there are no orders for flowers to be delivered to funeral homes, hospitals or churches.

Retail stores and shops are heading into their Christmas sales period with trepidation, knowing that their only medium of advertising is a shopping news delivered free to the doorsteps of about 60,000 homes. This throw-away comes out twice a week, but was to jump to three issues a week any day.

Not one merchant failed to admit, however, that it was a poor substitute for display ads in a daily paper.

There is no doubt about the economic blight that has settled over the city. Unassailable figures from the Federal Reserve bank at Boston disclosed that Springfield's business is the worst of any city in New England.

Weekly figures for increased business over the corresponding weeks in 1945 show cities like Boston, Hartford, Worcester and Portland reporting twice and three times the upswing recorded by Springfield retailers.

When the Republicans came out on top in the recent election they had no way of telling the public the results except by radio. Even this medium of news distribution fell down. Except for the key figures whose victory was acclaimed over the air the public had to learn by word of mouth whether local officials had won or lost.

The strange cloud that settled over the city when the papers ceased publication has cloaked strange events. Many citizens claim that the politicians slipped over a costly reduction in hours for members of the Fire Department simply because the public had no forum in which to learn all sides of the question.

There are many citizens here who fear that the local administration will railroad gravy trains through while the light of public scrutiny is blacked out. Already a hike in pay for teachers has been put forward by the school board.

J. Albin Anderson, former mayor, expressed the opinion that while the pay rise might or might not be justified, it was regrettable that the action could be taken without the taxpayers knowing about it.

"Another example of this ability to work virtually in camera is the decision by the new administration to transfer funds appropriated for a municipal airport to a construction fund for a stadium, which Springfield needs much less than an airport," said Mr. Anderson. "I doubt that such a move would have been dared had the newspapers been publishing day by day accounts."

While it is the shadow that has fallen over the doings of officials, and the economic losses to business that represents the gravest impact of the newspaper strike, it is the little things that go unpublished that most closely affect life in Springfield.

It is the practice here to collect ashes and rubbish on different streets on different days. The local paper customarily published the list of streets to be covered the next day. Now that is impossible and janitors and householders fret over the lack of information.

A little girl lost her cherished pet, a beagle hound, and the frantic parents, seeing her becoming ill, published reward offers in the Holyoke and Boston papers, to no avail. The local branch of the Massachusetts ASPCA has many dogs and cats that normally would have been claimed if notices could be published in the papers.

Moviegoers walk into the middle of the features because they don't know the schedules.

The Springfield Symphony Orchestra, a local civic enterprise, was forced to employ men as town criers to stand on busy streets announcing the opening of the winter season. Poole's, a local department store, opened a new costume jewelry section and couldn't announce the innovation. Attendance at the Icecapades, an annual sellout, was far below standards.

Much more serious than these trivial annoyances was the colossal flop of the local Community Chest Drive. For the first time in Springfield's history the campaign failed to reach its goal, falling 20 per cent below it when the usual methods of advertising and promotion were denied them.

Hunger for news of the outside world is overpowering. Out of town papers are snapped up like hot cakes. The sales of magazines of all types had quadrupled. Even so, the demand outruns the supply. Every newspaper is suffering from depleted supplies of newsprint and cannot take advantage of the opportunity to send large quantities of their issues to Springfield.

Those that trickle in are soon gone. There have been many instances of newsdealers handing these papers to their favorite customers in paper bags, as bootleggers once distributed bottles.

A school teacher in the local high school said many persons in this city have to wait until new history books are written to learn of world events. Her pupils, less conscious of the rarified existence in which they live, still are acutely aware of the absence of the comic strips.

Many a well traveled visitor walking the streets of Springfield is amazed to hear the newsboys calling their sparse wares. More often than not the words that greet their astonished eardrums are, "Get your Christian Science Monitor," a Boston newspaper.

New Mississippi Battle

Loser of First Packet Race in 17 Years Says He Wants 'Real' Match

The Gorden C. Greene, seen here through the life ring on the stern of another Mississippi packet, won the first impromptu steamer race on the river in many years. Skipper of the Golden Eagle, which lost, says he'll have this view at the finish line next time if the Greene answers his challenge.

By NEA Service

MEMPHIS, Tenn.— (NEA) — The muddy Mississippi will churn again with the racing paddle wheels of river packets if Capt. Ben J. Winters gets his wish.

Capt. Winters is ready to stake his reputation that his Golden Eagle can beat Capt. Tom Greene's Gordon Greene in a race from New Orleans to Memphis.

Old-timers along the river will argue the point. After all, the Greene showed the Eagle her stern wheel in the first impromptu race the river has seen in many years. There's two versions to how and why that race ended; it depends on which steamer you were riding.

One thing is certain. The race started just below Greenville, Miss., about breakfast time when the Green hove in view astern the Eagle. The Greene was billowing smoke, her wake was wide, so said the Eagle's passengers.

Capt. Johnny Brown, pilot of the Eagle, was just "poking" along when he realized that a real old-time race was in the making and called for 200 pounds steam pressure, all the Eagle's boilers could stand.

For a few minutes, while the Eagle's stoker frantically shoveled coal, the Green gained. Then the match narrowed. For hours only a few hundred yards separated the pounding paddle wheels of the Eagle from the Greene's racing cut-water. Smoke poured from the Eagle's stack and red hot cinders showered down on the decks and the water around the vessel.

The Greene, an oil burner, was better able to hold her steam pressure steady. The escape valves on the Eagle, time and again passing the 200-pound safety mark, lifted and blew as she fought to maintain maximum speed. For a long time it seemed as though the two vessels were perfectly matched.

Suddenly at a bend just below Arkansas City, Ark., the Eagle swung over into slack water. The Greene, sticking to the channel, cut the corner against the current and forged eight lengths ahead. That really ended the race—but not the arguments.

The two vessels remained in sight of each other during the remaining daylight hours but the Greene slowly broadened her lead, making Memphis by night. Sometime in the early hours of the evening, the Eagle, caught in a fog, hove to and laid up at the foot of President's Island, waiting for the weather to clear before coming on in.

Capt. Winters hadn't been ashore long when he issued his challenge for a real river race.

"Ours is a faster boat," he says. "All day he had been trying to get by us, but couldn't. We were using a poor quality coal and were really gobbling it up. That stuff costs money. I asked the pilot to ease up on her and he did. We went almost to the bend and cut down to let the other fellow by.

"Why, we used 49 tons of coal between Vicksburg and Memphis and don't have enough to get to St Louis now."

Anyway, it was the first packet race along the rixer in 17 years. If Capt. Greene accepts the challenge, it won't be the last. Old rivermen are smiling. Things are speeding up along the Mississippi

Living In A World of Color—

Roaming around some St. Louis department stores during recess from Missouri Press convention sessions, watching people "shop," I observed men and women examining and buying all sorts of colored merchandise.

When it came to choosing an article of this or that color mostly it was because of a personal preference for a particular hue. They were not concerned how that color might affect them or others physically or psychologically. Likely they were totally unaware of any color having connections with physical or psychological reactions.

A thought-provoking talk on the subject of color, of interest to sellers of merchandise, as well as individuals, was given at one convention session by H. Kurt Vahle, advertising and sales manager of Cupples-Hesse Corporation, St. Louis, manufacturers of paper products. Excerpts from his talk are thought-provoking:

"Dogs, cats and bulls, as well as all fur-bearing animals, with the exception of the monkey family, live in a world without color. If we humans lived in a world of white, gray and black, as does the animal kingdom, then our problems regarding color would be relatively simple.

"The mere fact that man lives in a world of many colors and that, with the exception of the eight hours he sleeps, he is under the stimulating or depressing influence of color, should prompt some serious thought and study to this important subject.

"We all acknowledge the impression music makes on the brain through the ear; it does affect our emotions. We have evidences of the moodizing of music in the quiet and tranquility of a symphony, in the shuffle and primitive gyrations of a "hot" jam session.

"Yet few of us stop to analyze that color, which makes an impression through its medium, the eye, upon the brain, affects our emotional stability too. If we pause and recollect, we have all been emotionally carried away by perhaps our first view of the Grand Canyon replete in color; certainly we have enjoyed the buoyancy of an early morning sunrise.

"We are all influenced by color, that is, all but the one man in 24 and the one woman in 286 among us who happens to be color-blind. The rest of us are born with some sort of 'color sense,' good, bad, or indifferent, just as we have a music sense varying from that of the artist who composes, down to the washerwoman's, who merely hums as she works.

"We wouldn't think of going out and giving a recital without some musical training, yet most of us wouldn't hesitate for a minute to choose colors for anything from our own office to our home, based on nothing other than our personal preference for this or that color.

Physical Effect of Color

"It was Newton who discovered that white light contained all colors when he filtered sunlight through a prism. Since light in luminous form is heat, pigmented surfaces that reflect light reflect heat and are therefore cooler physically. When the temperature inside a white linen suit shows 98 degrees F., a dark suit of the same material will show a temperature of 115 degrees.

"It is not by accident, therefore, that dairy, milk, ice and floral trucks are painted white or with light tints to reflect light and heat. It is a well-known fact that gasoline storage tanks painted white will cut down evaporation over darker hued tanks, even over containers that are painted silver.

"A farmer knows that white horses working in the field are capable of doing more work than black horses because white horses remain cooler longer.

"The visibility of colors too is important. Yellow can be seen furthest, then red, then green: that applies only to pigmented surfaces (painted or printed).

"Since yellow as a pigmented color can be seen furthest, it is used on highway markers, stop signs and fire hydrants. Black on yellow offers greatest distance legibility. This color combination is fine for billboards and outdoor signs, but must be used sparingly on booklets or any literature that must be read at close range.

"The high visibility of yellow makes this color popular with the manufacturers of children's rain coats, school dress, boys' shirts, caps and head scarfs will be next to use yellow, for manufacturers will begin merchandising their products as safety garments that can be seen farthest by motorists.

"About red, and blue, and green, from a visibility standpoint, they are not as important as from a psychological point of view, so in the limited time we have we shall stress later upon the effect these colors have on human emotions.

"After image is another physical peculiarity of color. Snow blindness is an excellent example of this phenomenon. A snow blind person remains in an atmosphere of white so long that the eye becomes fatigued to that color and seeks the complementary color black. This results in temporary loss of sight until the strain on the over-used eye muscles is relieved. We can be affected physically by being under the influence of one color in as short a time as 30 seconds. During the OPA, sale of meat in a butcher shop was increased by putting ceiling prices on a sign with a pale green background. The customers viewing the sign and then looking at the meat saw the meat through a red film the opposite color of the light green. The meat looked fresher so they bought it and told their friends about the fresher meat at the store.

"Direct Mailers know, that in mailing to farmers in summertime green is a poor color to use because the farmer is in a green atmosphere all day, and his eye is tired of green and seeks a balance color. Therefore, folders printed in red will bring better results.

"Besides absorption and reflection, legibility, and readability, after image, other physical properties of color, other physical characteristics, such as tradition, direction of light, etc., should be considered in choosing colors.

Psychological Effects

"The effect colors have upon the emotions is an extremely important factor in selecting color. The stimulating colors are yellow, orange and red; these colors are generally classified as the 'warm' colors. Blue, green and violet are sedative colors; these are classified as the 'cold' colors.

"The four psychological primaries are red, green, yellow, blue. Red and green, yellow and blue are direct complementary as are orange and violet. Direct complementary colors offer striking harmony patterns for each color complements the other, i.e., where red and green are used as direct complementary colors, the red intensifies the green, and the green the red, making the colors seem more pronounced.

"The stimulating colors are obviously action colors; they get things done quickly. Red, of course, is the most volatile of these action colors, then orange and then yellow. The same colors if used in large areas cause farsightedness; cause the colors to come closer. Therefore, colors from the 'action' family should not be used in large amounts in small rooms for they cause walls psychologically to 'close in,' cause the small rooms to seem even smaller.

"Men cannot remain long in a pure red environment. That is why a retail chain of candy stores painted the inside of their phone booths a brilliant red. This action, they say, completely eliminated long phone conversations and enabled them to take down unsightly signs asking that the phone not be used for long periods of time.

"In addition to being a stimulating color, red is a war color. Traditionally, it is a danger color.

"It is a well-known fact that a pink (which is a part of the red family) reply envelope will bring quick replies when selling inexpensive items or where replies can be given without deliberation. Where the item sold requires time to reach a decision, then pink reply envelopes should not be used for the recipient cannot leave the envelope on his desk for the length of time required to make this decision. The stimulating color of the envelope suggests that action be taken and as a result this action may culminate in his tossing the envelope in the waste basket.

"The sedative colors are direct opposites, blue being the most sedative, then green, then violet. Here again large areas of these colors cause the colors seemingly to recede from the eye. Therefore these colors are excellent for use in small rooms —they make the rooms appear larger.

"These colors are excellent for use in direct mail where the purchase of the article sold must be studied. Sedative colors promote concentration.

"The degree of stimulation or sedativeness of warmness or coolness can be varied by adding white to produce tints, adding gray to produce tones, or adding black to produce shades. Psychologically again tints produce lightness of weight, nimbleness, airiness, whereas shades create the impression of heaviness, stability, dignity; tones serve as compromise colors.

"So far, only a very few of the highlights of the four psychological primaries (red, yellow, blue and green) have been covered in this discussion. The above information is far from all that is necessary before the correct selection can be made. There are other factors which must also be considered. These include section and international color preference, age, education, etc., all of them important whether one color is being chosen to paint your office, or where myriads of hues are selected for a color advertisement.

"Each of your problems on color must be handled individually. Color is too complex to attempt to do anything but generalize and thus vaguely familiarize you with its potency in so brief a discussion. My mission is not to present an education in color, but to call attention to the neglected power of color. It is my hope that you will become aware of the potentiality of color to the point of becoming a student in this progressive and increasingly important science."

Every year approximately 2,500 children under 15 years of age die of tuberculosis. Health education programs in the schools, including tuberculin testing, are supported by Christmas Seal funds.

Willow Run—"Will It Run?"

After One Year, Kaiser-Frazer Continues T oHold Only a Beachhead in Autoland

Cross section of No. 1 "body-in-white" production line at Willow Run. One big question is whether Kaiser-Frazier can increase production fast enough to stop Big Three from satisfying pent-up demand.

By James Thrasher
NEA Staff Correspondent

DETROIT (NEA)—Henry Kaiser and Joseph Frazer got more than they bargained for when they leased Willow Run from the government to make automobiles. Besides acquiring more than 80 acres of factory space they fell heir to the skepticism which has hung like a cloud over the huge building most of its five years' existence.

When I first visited Willow Run, nearly four years ago, the Ford Motor Co. had not yet hit its stride in producing B-24 bombers. People had rechristened the plant with a doubtful punning question: "Will it run?" The question was still being asked when ,with a group of brokers' representatives, financial writers and other newspaper men, I returned to Willow Run to look over the plant after one year of its operation by Kaiser-Frazier.

It may be more than coincidence that the same question was asked about both manufacturing ventures. In each case a production genius was entering a new field. People wondered if Henry Ford, pioneer of automobile mass production, could apply the same technique to aircraft. They wondered whether Henry Kaiser could build cars at a tempo comparable to the amazing speed with which his yards turned out Liberty ships.

Miracles Expected

Probably the public was oversold on both Henrys. They expected miracles, and the publicity that accompanied both ventures did little to tone down those expectations. They knew little and cared less about the difficulties involved. They wanted bombers and automobiles pulled out of a silk hat.

When the trick didn't come off, the public grew impatient. Doubts and questions replaced the early, intemperate enthusiasm. Rumors began flying. In the case of Kaiser and Frazer, there were some unfulfilled prophecies by both partners which didn't increase the public's confidence. It all added up to the pun with the serious overtones, "Will it run?"

The first anniversary tour provided some affirmative answers. The factory is running, with 8,800 workers on two shifts turning out Frazer and Kaiser Special sedans at a steadily increasing rate—presently around 220 cars a day.

A second "body-in-white" line (unpainted bodies) has just been started to match the growing speed of final assembly. Two complete production lines are expected to be in operation by January 1, with a potential capacity of 1,500 cars a day. Twenty-one huge body presses are being installed to supplement the six now in operation.

The factory's product is running too, and very nicely. The car—basically the same job for both automobiles, except for the Frazer's more expensive upholstery, extra appointments, and optional overdrive—is attractive, speedy, comfortable and roomy, handles easily and sticks to the road like a leech.

The big question is whether Kaiser-Frazier will be able to stand up to the powerful competion of General Motors, Ford and Chrysler. There is no present answer to that, of course. But here are a few pros and cons which may help anyone who cares to make book on the possibilities.

Among the pros are the hurdles that Kaiser-Frazier has already cleared. The new corporation has faced most of the post-war problems which afflicted established auto manufacturers, and without the latter's organization and experience. It has solved the majority of them with the energy and determination to get things done that is characteristic of both partners.

When Kaiser-Frazier couldn't get steel, it leased a blast furnace and bought an interest in a steel mill. Its representatives, sent out to scour the world for other material, turned up such things as copper in the Philippines and zinc in Siam. Kaiser-Frazer has been able to swap some of these commodities for other materials, besides using them at Willow Run.

This, of course, has been in addition to the tremendous job of organization, tooling and plant engineering that had to be done from scratch before a car could come off the line.

Labor Relations Good

Labor relations at Kaiser-Frazer are excellent, with only a few brief jurisdictional disputes to disturb the harmony. Typical of the management's efforts along this line is the setting aside of $5 for each car made toward a fund for annual distribution among eligible employes. It is expected that next year this bonus will equal three or four weeks' pay to each recipient.

Kaiser-Frazer took over the distribution system of Graham-Paige, to which it is joined by an intricate corporate arrangement. (Frazer is president and chairman of Graham-Page as well as president of Kaiser-Frazer.) This gives K-F the industry's third largest dealer set-up—146 distributors and some 4200 dealers, with separate sales organization for its farm equipwent, besides distributors in 80 foreign sales areas throughout the world.

The corporation's sale of 3,500,000 shares of stock seems to answer the earlier and often heard question of whether Henry Kaiser could operate a business without access to the easy and abundant source of government money.

As for the cons, there is first of all the fact that Kaiser-Frazer is still in the red. A statement for the first four months of 1946 showed a net loss of more than $3,500,000. Some outsiders predict that this will grow to $15,000,000 by the end of the year.

The partners don't seem particularly worried, however. They point out that much of the net loss is due to the writing off of all development and engineering expenses, and the amortization of tools and dies, which is already begun.

Frazer told the press party that he hoped production volume would soon be at a point where the public could buy the company's products at about the present wholesale prize. (Current f.o.b. prices are $1645 for the Kaiser Special and $1795 for the Frazer.) It remains to be seen whether K-F will be able to get volume up and prices down before competitor's production has somewhat satisfied the country's car hunger and made buyers more selective.

Some doubt has been expressed that Kaiser, who is new to the automotive industry, and Frazer, whose 34 years in the business have been mostly in sales and financing, can cope with the established companies' greater engineering and manufacturing experience.

That is an iffy question. But there is evidence in Kaiser-Frazer's brief history, of some confusion and over-optimism. Last January, for example, Kaiser announced a low-price, front-drive car that would bear his name. In April he said that the first front-drive Kaisers would be in dealers' hands by July 15. The next month brought announcement of the present conventional Kaiser.

October Production 2193

In August Edgar Kaiser, Henry's son and K-F vice president and general manager, announced a goal of 9,000 cars for the month of October. Actual October production was 2193.

When the first issue of Kaiser-Frazer stock was offered, in September, 1945, the partners said that they expected six months to pass before "production of any size" was attained. How "sizable" is production after 14 months?

Well, it isn't much compared with Ford's 3500 a day. But there really is no basis for comparison. Automobile manufacturers who started from scratch and have survived began years ago and under decidedly different conditions. Even Chrysler, youngest of the Big Three, had the old Maxwell factory at its disposal when it turned out 32,000 cars in 1924, its first year.

It is significant, however, that Henry Ford II is reported to be impressed by Kaiser-Frazer's accomplishments and to have told a visitor that any company which is turning out 200 cars a day at the end of its first year is a competitive force to be reckoned with.

It is also significant that everybody at Kaiser-Frazer, from the bosses to the help, seem sold on the cars they are making and sure that they can hold their own against established competition.

The corporation is putting out roots into the soil of a 370-acre plot nearby, where work is under way on 1750 permanent, well-built houses which will form the new community of West Willow.

After a quick look at all these things, I brought away the impression that Henry Kaiser and Joe Frazer expect to stay at Willow Run—and make it run.

Approximately 500,000 people in this country have tuberculosis, according to conservative estimates. Half of these are "unknown cases"—people who may not know they are ill yet may be spreading the disease.

Since World War I, the United States government has spent more than a billion dollars in caring for tuberculous veterans of that war. No one yet knows what the cost of caring for the tuberculous veterans of World Warr II will be.

Mow Down Coyotes and Wolves by the Use of Planes

Little Gadget in The Ground is Also a Highly Effective Weapon

By Vern Haugland

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—(AP)—Government coyote and wolf hunters are mowing 'em down with the airplanes and a little gadget called the coyotte getter. The U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service says they are the most effective weapons now used against predatory animals.

The hunters especially praise the 'getter. Since 1940 the Wildlife Services supply depot at Pocatello, Idaho, alone has issued more than 50,000 of them to district agents.

A set-gun only a few inches long, the coyote-getter is imbedded in the ground and covered with rabbit fur or wool about the size of a man's thumb. When an animal seizes the bait, the gun fires a cartridge of sodium cyanide into his mouth. He usually dies within 100 or 200 feet.

Greatly Increase Kill

Albert M. Day, director of the fish and wild life service reports:

"In Texas, increased and improved use of the coyotte-getter was chiefly responsible for a 45 per cent increase in the number of coyottes and wolves killed during the 1945-46 fiscal year.

"Of 24,842 wolves and coyotes killed in Texas during the year, more than 35 per cent were accounted for by the coyote-getter. Its chief advantages are simplicity, its adaptability to use on ranges where livestock or game are grazing, and its humane effectiveness."

Elko county, Nevada, stockmen are among the leaders in the use of airplanes for finding coyote colonies by tracks in the snow, for dropping poisoned baits or merely for shooting. An aerial marksman killed 23 coyotes in four hours and 29 minutes over a Ruby Valley ranch at a cost of $50.

Domingo Ractune last summer ran 3,800 sheep west of Carlin, Nev., in an area over which coyote-hunting plants had been operating without a loss.

The hunters still use traps and poison in many areas where they have proven more effective and in some places where it's a question of occasionally cleaning up a few survivors of earlier campaigns.

Preventing Losses

The Bruneau Sheep Co., in Southwestern Idaho, which used to lose 1,500 lambs a year to coyotes, informed the wildlife service it had no losses whatsoever last spring on the part of its range that had been treated with the government developed chemical "1080."

L. Winteer, Mariposa county, California, reported 18 hogs killed by coyotes before a government hunter arrived, no losses since.

Coyotes killed 35 sheep, seven calves and 50 turkeys on the Maclay Brothers ranch at Lolo, Mont., and 22 suckling pigs and 20 chickens at the neighboring Chris Maier farm, from May, 1944, to September, 1945, losses totaled $1,360.

Hunter Virgil McCrossin arrived September 8, 1945. By April 1, 1946, he had trapped or poisoned 71 coyotes. There were no further losses.

A Jackson County, Colo., sheepman who annually lost up to 10 per cent of his flocks to coyotes reported no losses between the time they were put on spring range and their return to feeding areas this fall, thanks to hunters.

Ben Norman, whose 1,500 sheep range in Sioux county, Neb., said coyote control has become so effective he has been able to leave his herds unattended since October, 1945—at a saving in herder's pay of $650.

Fifty-two sheep belonging to Steel Goudy, Silver Lake, Ore., strayed away last November and didn't return until February. Only four were missing. In the same county, J. W. O'Keefe lost 164 sheep from his band and recovered all but two after a month, a record uiheard of in the days before coyote control.

Hunter Wiley Smith killed two coyotes on the Bill Hickman farm, Norten, Mo., after they had destroyed 36 lambs, 25 pigs and 100 chickens.

Wolves killed 190 goats, worth $3.50 each, and $175 worth of calves on the L. C. Adams ranch in Miller county, Ark. A hunter caught 14 wolves there within a few weeks.

Massachusetts poultry raisers have reported individual losses up to $5,000 a month to prowling foxes. Farmers of Knox county, Neb., organizing a predatory animal control project last April, estimated their annual losses from predatory animals at $49,000.

Hunter Elmer Sternhagen trapped, on the Curtis Norman ranch south of Chadron, Neb., last August, a bobcat suspected of killing 30 lambs and ewes, as many as seven in a single raid. With the capture, killings have ceased.

D. R. Irwin, of Hopkins county, Texas, caught a female wolf in a trap by two toes of a front foot in January, 1943. She escaped and since then has eluded traps, although Irwin has trapped her pups each year and also captured four of her mates. During the next three years, she killed turkeys, lambs, kids and pigs valued at $2,000. Finally captured recently, she was about to give birth to 11 pups.

Near Killdeer, N. D., Hunter Frank J. Stocks, using the coyote-getter, killed an Albino coyote last winter and sent its skin and skull to the National Museum at Washington. Some weeks later, in the same area, Bud Fisher and Ralph Fisher shot another Albino.

Every known case of tuberculosis presents a double threat—to the individual who may be losing his own health and to relatives and associates who may catch the disease from him.

California led the United States in value of farm production in 1945. Its farm returns exceeded $1,000,000,000

At the time the National Tuberculosis Association was formed in 1904, there were fewer than 10,000 hospital beds for the tuberculous in the United States. There are 100,000 today.

Half-way mark on the Oregon Trail was South Pass in the Continental Divide in Wyoming.

The average American ate 225 pounds of fruit annually between 1937 and 1941.

T. B. Patients Should Enter a Sanatorium

By WILLIAM A. O'BRIEN, M. D.
Written for NEA Service

Tuberculosis remains a major health problem even though there has been a sharp reduction in the number of cases in recent years and tuberculosis deaths have dropped 75 per cent in the last 25 years.

The problem of eliminating tuberculosis is largely a matter of casefinding and the discovery of a specific drug for destroying the infection.

The discovery of tuberculosis early in its course saves others from infection and gives the patient's body a better chance to overcome the infection.

Tuberculosis is caused by a germ which attacks the lungs, although any part of the body except the hair, teeth, and nails can be affected by the tubercule bacillus.

Bovine T. B. Restricted

A few years ago bovine (animal) tuberculosis was a serious public health menace. But the widespread use of pasteurized milk and the slaughter of infected cattle have greatly decreased the number of infections in man.

To avoid spreading the disease, tuberculosis patients should enter a sanatorium for care as soon as the disease is discovered.

To find cases of tuberculosis, public health officials use two methods. In one, a skin test (Mantoux) is performed, and, if that is found positive, an X-ray examination of the chest is made. In the other, an X-ray examination of the chest is made without a preliminary skin test.

X-ray examination of the chest is advisable whenever signs and symptoms of tuberculosis are present. Such signs are coughing, expectoration of blood-tinged sputum, loss of weight and strength, night sweats and fever.

Aged Confuse T. B.

Many elderly people have tuberculosis and do not know it, considering their trouble to be a bronchial condition and not tuberculosis. Young children may be infected in the home by an elderly tuberculosis person who cares for them.

The problem of discovering a specific drug for tuberculosis treatment has been partially solved by the use of steptomycin in certain forms.

Rest, however, is still the most important treatment for tuberculosis of the lungs.

It would be ideal if every patient entered a tuberculosis sanatorium with his disease in the beginning stages. This would decrease the number of treatment days required and assure restoration of a higher percentage of individuals to complete economic and social usefulness.

QUESTION: What is the difference between Parkinson's Disease and paralysis agitans?

ANSWER: There is no difference. Parkinson's Disease was first described by James Parinson in 1817. The common name for it is paralysis agitans, because of the shaking palsy which characterizes it. The disease may be so slowly progressive that it may last for years without interfering with the individual's work.

CALL ME LIZ

by Rene Ryerson Mart — Copyright, 1946, NEA Service, Inc.

THE STORY: Red McFan, army pilot, comes home with a chestful of ribbons and a cocky swagger. His old boss offers him a chance to finish school and a part-time job meanwhile, both of which he accepts. Russ Condon, the boss' son, is his closest friend. Russ is in love with Elise Varney, who dislikes Red. Red is dismayed to learn that his new job means working under Elise. He finds his schoolwork difficult.

RED jammed his hands into his pockets and stood staring disconsolately out the window. This school stuff was the bunk. What he wanted was a job. A real man's job. Something he could get his teeth into. And the feeling that he was getting ahead. A chance to get married if he wanted to . . .

He began to laugh. Get married? Whom would he marry? There never had been any girl he'd been interested in for more than a date or two.

But thinking of marriage and girls brought Jackie Spence to his mind. Not that he thought about her in a serious way. Not that little blonde fluff. But she was fun.

He went downstairs to the phone in the hall and dialed her number. Someone else answered and he asked for Jackie and after a moment her rather childish voice came to him over the wire.

"Hello—oh, hello, Red," as she recognized his voice. "I've been trying to get hold of you."

"Well, why didn't you call me up?"

"I did—but you were never home."

"I work, you know," Red reminded her. "And go to school."

"Yes." Her voice sounded pouty. "Can you take me to a formal?"

"A formal—oh, you mean a dance. Where? When? What?"

At the Neil House. Her sorority was giving it. Friday night.

Red's face wore a frown. Society affairs weren't his long suit.

But after all why not? This was part of the higher education he was supposed to be getting. He told Jackie he could and would.

His frown deepened when he hung up. He'd have to buy Jackie a corsage and rent a tuxedo. He hadn't the money to buy one—and probably couldn't buy one if he had the money.

He'd been trying to buy other civilian clothes and so far hadn't had much luck.

* * *

AT the laboratory Elise and Red had declared a sort of unarmed truce. They worked together in silence for the most part, although Red still resented having to take orders from her.

Occasionally, however, there would be the clash of open warfare.

Red's first job every morning was preparing the day's testing solutions. He liked to work with the balance weighing out the chemicals and he worked fast. With his keen eye he caught the pointer the first time it made an even swing. He always took that reading.

Elise on the other hand was slower and more methodical when she weighed. She waited for a second reading to confirm the first.

One morning she criticized Red's method. "Take it a little slower, Red. We want accuracy rather than speed."

He flared up in a minute. "Wait and see how this solution comes out before you say too much. Then we'll see who's accurate."

He made up the solution, tested it for strength and it came out right on the nose.

"That's me every time," he boasted with defensible pride. "The accuracy kid."

Elise, angry at being in the wrong, shrugged her shoulders. It just happened that Russel came through at that moment on his way from the factory to the front office.

"Say," he said to Red. "What about another double date tonight?

Red looked at Elise sourly. "No, thanks," he said. "I don't think I could stand the excitement of another evening with that Clark dame. Besides I have a date—I'm taking a kid up at State to a formal."

Which reminded him belatedly that he hadn't done anything yet about getting a tuxedo.

* * *

IT dawned on Red that Jackie's people probably had money as he waited for her in the living room of the sorority house. There was class all over the place, he noted, period furniture, long mirrors, shaded lamps. She wouldn't be staying in a place like this if they hadn't.

Jackie herself came tripping blithely into the room on the heels of his thought. A pink mist of yards and yards of chiffon settled slowly about her silver slippered feet as she came to a stop before him. Red's eyes appreciatively took in the low neckline of the dress and white breast above it.

Jackie stared at him—stared at his sport jacket and slacks with unbelieving eyes. "But Red, you have to dress. This is formal."

"I know, honey," Red said. "But I couldn't find a tux anywhere. I looked all over town this afternoon."

"But your uniform—" Jackie wailed. "I wanted you to wear your uniform. You look so nice with all those ribbons on your coat." She'd been looking forward to showing him off, savoring the envious glances of sorority sisters.

Red explained patiently. "Listen, Jackie. My terminal leave is up. I'm not supposed to wear the uniform now."

Jackie's eyes were brimming with spoiled tears.

"I'm sorry, honey. Really I am. I'd have called you and cancelled the date—but it was too late. Here're your flowers." He made a conciliatory motion with the florist box he carried.

"I won't go with you dressed like that," Jackie said suddenly. "I won't. They'd laugh at me."

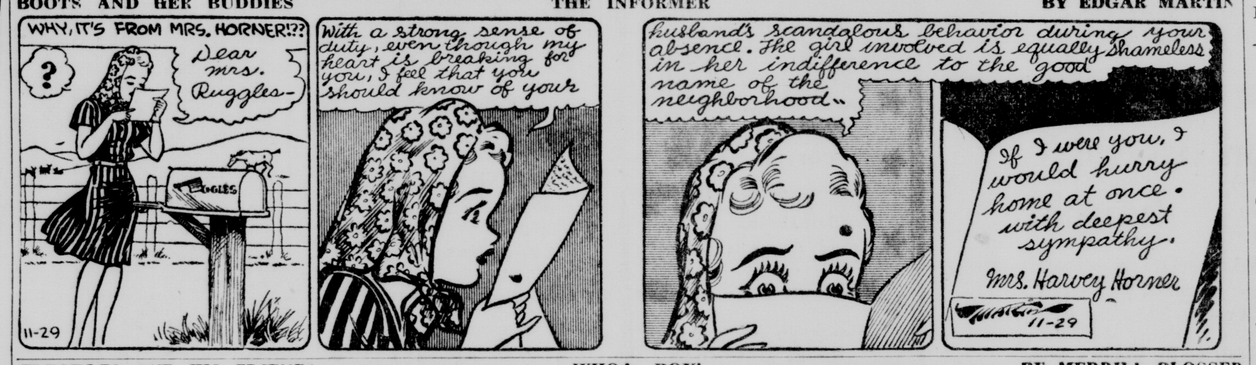

And she turned and ran from the room.

Paralized Vets Learn To Fly, Play Golf And Work

By PATT WATTS
NEA Staff Correspondent

VAN NUYS, Calif.— (NEA) — Despite paralysis from the waist down, veterans at Birmingham hospital are learning to walk again and to become expert swimmers and bowlers. Some men are even learning how to fly.

Paraplegics, men paralyzed from the waist, are the main patients at this veterans' hospital. More than 250 of them are learning that paralysis need not be hopelessly crippling. Using only their shoulder muscles, they are finding new vocations and new hobbies — photography, gunsmithing, radio repair, watchmaking, typing, jewelry making, ceramics, and copper tooling.

Heat treatments, braces, massage, and exercise including swimming, help paraplegics regain the use of their muscles.

The hospital at present has a regular swimming pool, but it hopes to build a new one soon for the exclusive use of paraplegics. More shallow than the conventional type, it will have a gradual incline so that men can slip into the pool from wheelchairs.

Paralyzed men are learning to drive automobiles and airplanes A flying club has been organized, using planes that have the instruments arranged for operation without the use of the pilot's feet. Teams are organized for badminton, archery, and pool, with enough men on each side so that they can cover the territory by reaching instead of running.

Six men attend nearby University of California at Los Angeles where they are registered as regular students even though they attend lectures in wheelchairs. High school classes are in session at the hospital.

Two patients who became interested in their own braces decided to take up brace-forming as a job. Enrolling in the hospital's leather and metal classes, they became experts and on discharge from the hospital were hired back to make braces for other paralyzed veterans.

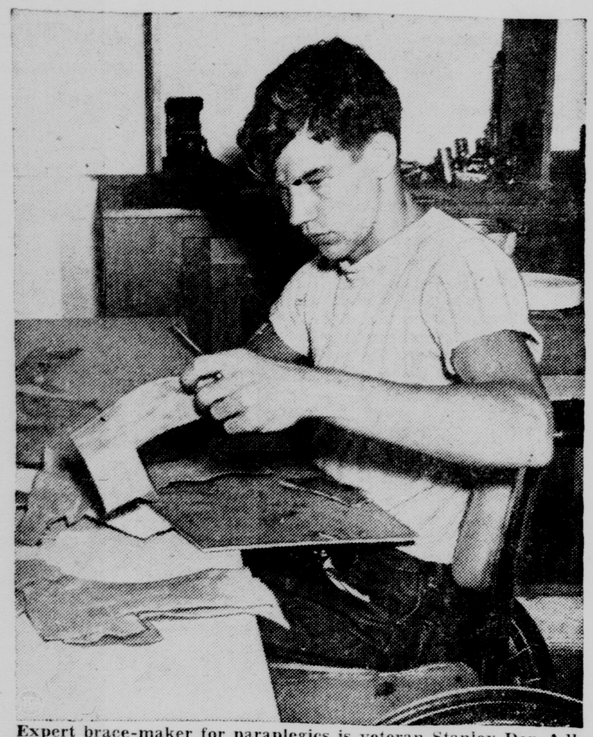

A special golf course was landscaped at the hospital for the use of the patients. Despite their own handicaps, which make sand traps seem like pale obstacles, many of the veterans are still anxious to make that hole in one.

When a paraplegic enters the hospital, the rehabilitation work begins with giving the man simple exercises to regain the use of his fingers and wrists. After several weeks he advances to the muscles of his arms. Not only does he exercise, but he starts hobbies such as weaving to strengthen his hands and arms. A special loom has been constructed to lay over a bed so that a patient can weave while he is flat on his back.

Leg exercises are started with the patient lying on a floor mat. If these are successful, the next phase is for the man to begin walking again. Parallel bars about waist high are constructed across a room where the patient, supported by his arms, begins the thrilling experience of taking his first steps.

Of the cases of tuberculosis found in mass X-Ray examinations about 70 per cent are in the early stage. Among admissions to tuberculosis, only 10 to 12 per cent are in the early stage. The others are moderately or far advanced.

Carotin is the pigment that causes the yellow color of both egg yolks and butter, as well as carrots.

Expert brace-maker for paraplegics is veteran Stanley Den Adle, Corte Madera, Calif., who is paralyzed himself. At Birmingham hospital he learned his skilled trade, was discharged as a patient and then hired to aid others.
